Black Tide Disaster?

Times News Services

LA CORUNA, Spain — The disabled Greek supertanker Andros Patria, which has spewed 50,000 tons of crude oil into the sea off the northwest Spanish coast, was being towed toward Lisbon by a Dutch tug today, the Spanish navy said.

Regarding a possible "black tide" disaster, the navy said "We have sufficient means to control and counter, if necessary, the oil slicks."

But officials insisted that a big disaster on the Spanish coasts was not likely unless wind and weather conditions changed for the worse.

"The tug Wijsmuller is towing the tanker toward Lisbon at a speed of two knots," the communique said.

The tanker was damaged by fires and explosions Sunday night.

All but three of the ship's 37 crew and passengers were lost when their lifeboat capsized in heavy waves and were believed drowned. The missing included the captain, his wife and son.

In Madrid, Greek Embassy sources said heavy seas pounded a crack in the port side hull of the 218,000-ton Andros Patria on New Year's Eve. Then came a short circuit, explosions and the fire.

"We were really scared and we never expected to ever return home again," said boatswain Evangelos Milas, one of the three crewmen who remained aboard and were rescued by helicopter.

"All of us crew members got together to wait for midnight to celebrate the New Year. We did not expect anything like what happened," Milas told Spanish television.

Before being plucked by helicopter from the crippled tanker Monday night, the chief engineer got the ship's engines running again and set the automatic pilot on a course away from Spain's northwest coast, about 30 miles away, an official Spanish navy communique said.

Today the Andros Patria was a crewless, ghost ship sailing at about 4 knots in heavy North Atlantic seas.

Rescue boats and two tugs loaded with detergents to fight the slicks were sent to the area.

A treacherous onslaught of snow, ice and arctic winds thrust much of the United States and Europe into post-holiday chaos today.

In northern and eastern Europe, fuel supplies were cut off and roads were made impassable by huge snowdrifts.

Since Friday, at least 26 people have died in Europe and others were reported missing in what forecasters called the worst freeze-up in decades.

Blizzard conditions in the U.S. Monday caused widespread power outages in Texas and Missouri and stranded thousands of airline travellers in Chicago. At least 10 deaths were blamed on the New Year's weekend weather.

In Britain, train service was badly disrupted. Subways were halted in London but both major airports were open after a two-day shutdown. The coldest spot was in Yorkshire, near the Scottish border, where temperatures hit just about zero fahrenheit.

At least 10 persons were believed to have died in storm-related deaths in the worst winter weather in Britain in 15 years.

At least 17 major highways in Scotland were blocked and many villages were still isolated after two days.

In Moscow, the bitter cold snap broke Monday evening when the thermometer edged all the way up to -10 fahrenheit — almost warm compared with Sunday when the mercury registered a bone-chilling 49 below zero for Moscow's coldest recorded temperature in history.

In Poland, the government declared the northern and central provinces a disaster zone.

In East Germany, power cuts were ordered in certain areas and electricity lines felled by the weight of ice on the wires added to the trouble. The army ordered its soldiers and tracked vehicles to clear highways.

Troops were out in West Germany to help clear blocked roads after 80 hours of continuous snowfall. Even tanks got stuck in the massive drifts. Several northern cities were declared disaster areas and

Scientists Shoot Down Kiwi 'UFO'

Times News Services

Film footage of purported close encounters with UFOs over New Zealand filled television screens New Year's Day and the Royal New Zealand Air Force prepared to send up warplanes today to check it all out.

"We do not consider there is a defence threat," an air force spokesman said, "but it's all very interesting."

British astronomers scoffed at the purported 3½-minute color film that was shown on the BBC main news on New Year's Eve. In color, the round UFO had showed three bright orange rings.

Martin Ryle, professor of radio astronomy at Cambridge said the film was a hoax and he could produce a "saucer" as shown in the film in a week.

Patrick Moore, a British astronomer and TV commentator, said: "It could have been some kind of reflection of a balloon or an unscheduled aircraft. But I'm sure it came from the earth and not the skies."

Meanwhile, David Mabin, head of the New Zealand's Mount John Observatory, said the unidentified flying objects were almost certainly the planet Venus.

Mabin said Venus is currently at its brightest and can be seen for about 12 hours a day.

A rash of sightings and radar trackings of unidentified flying objects have been reported along the the coast of New Zealand in the last 10 days, culminating in the filming of the flattened spheres on New Year's Eve by an Australian television crew.

A New Zealand defence spokesman said one or two Skyhawk fighter-bombers would be "scrambled" if the Wellington airport radar picked up more positive sightings of UFOs.

The warplanes were put on standby following UFO sightings during a flight between Christchurch and Wellington.

Television newsman David Fogarty who organized the filming of the UFOs said he had seen up to 50 "saucers" in the sky during a 5½-hour flight that he made to reconstruct an earlier sighting on Dec. 21.

The film of the purported UFOs showed a series of slightly flattened spheres lighter in color at the top and bottom and around the centre.

The TV crew's sightings were followed, predictably, by a rash of sightings in Australia.

The Australian defence department said it had been notified of 19 UFO sightings since the reported filming Saturday, but was not taking them seriously.

At least 12 policemen said they saw a bright blue object tracing a random flight for three hours over Australia's east coast early today.

Milder Weather Brings Prospect Of Snow

Milder temperatures hovering just above freezing make snow a distinct prospect for Greater Victoria by late today or Wednesday.

Small frozen ponds probably will remain safe for skaters, but police are continuing to warn people off larger lakes or inlets on southern Vancouver Island.

Since the cold snap started, a teen-age girl has drowned and four other other persons have been rescued after falls through ice.

A Victoria weather office spokesman said today snow is a possibility tonight at higher elevations and at lower levels Wednesday as a weather system brings clouds inland from the Pacific.

The overnight low is expected to be between +4 and -2 degrees, rising to just above freezing by day.

The New Year's day low of -11 matched the New Year's eve low at the airport, while Gonzales weather station reported a low of -12.2. The thermometer failed to rise above -2 Monday.

The only known Vancouver Island victim of the abonormally low temperatures of recent days is Karen Barbara Yates, 15, of Duncan.

The girl died Friday when she fell through the ice at a skating party near Duncan.

Divers recovered her body late Saturday.

A Nanaimo man who brought his ladder to a dock at Brannen Lake in case any skaters, broke through the ice is credited with the daring rescue of two persons Monday when thin ice dunked three skaters into frigid water.

Murray Martin used a neighbor's canoe to get close to the trio when the thin ice began breaking as he carried the three-metre ladder toward them.

"I was just scared the whole time that they would let go of the ice and sink," Martin said.

Martin had checked the lake Sunday and found it too thin for skating. He said he was on the dock of his neighbor's lakeside home when he saw the three break through the ice.

"I raced back and got the

Canadians Fleeing

Times News Services

TEHRAN — The Iranian military restored limited commercial air service at Tehran Airport today after a strike by airport workers Monday stranded Canadians and hundreds of other foreigners trying to flee the strife-torn country.

Meanwhile, demonstrators and soldiers fought running battles in the streets of Tehran and violence raged in Iran's provinces.

The state radio announced that all trains were halted by a nationwide strike. Inter-city bus services were stopped earlier by a gasoline shortage, caused by the continuing oil industry strike.

The shutdowns raised fears that some foreigners trying to reach Tehran might still be stranded in the provinces. But the capital's hotels, deserted lately owing to civil strife, were occupied by hundreds of foreign families awaiting departure.

Civilian Premier-designate Shahpour Bakhtiar in an emotional broadcast vowed:

"I shall not let this country be destroyed even if I have to die." He promised to free all political prisoners, allow political opposition and end martial law "gradually."

But demonstrators who earlier shouted "Death to the Shah" took up a new slogan, "Death to Shahpour Bakhtiar, henchman of American imperialists."

Military Premier Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari resigned officially Monday. He was told by Shah Mohamed Reza Pahlavi to stay on until Bakhtiar forms a cabinet.

U.S. Plans 'Haven' for Refugees

Times News Services

MANILA — A U.S. congressional team flew over a stranded refugee ship in Manila Bay today and announced a rehabilitation plan that would turn Asia into a "haven" for Vietnamese refugees.

Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., told reporters the Asian Development Bank had agreed to finance the projects for the establishment of permanent "self-sustaining" refugee communities "in various nations throughout Asia."

The idea behind the plan, he said, was to remove the economic obstacles to the resettlement of refugees "so that some of the nations which have not accepted the refugees will be moved into accepting them."

Wolff and his party had a first-hand look at the refugee situation when they flew over Manila where 2,400 Vietnamese refugees lay packed in the Hong Kong freighter Tung An, unable to land after Philippine authorities denied them temporary asylum last week.

Werner Blatter, representative of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees who has been screening the refugees, indicated at the least a third or about 800 of them would be resettled in industrialized countries. These are refugees with family links overseas.

Philippine authorities indicated they would insist that those refugees who might not be repatriated should go to Hong Kong, their first port of call.

"Let them go to Hong Kong," one senior official said. "We should have done what Brunei did." The Tung An was earlier denied entry in Brunei and towed back to open waters.

The right to demand that a vessel sail to its first port of call is provided under international law, the spokesman said.

The Tung An left Bangkok Dec. 2 with a cargo of cattle feed bound for Hong Kong. It rescued a sinking boatload of 700 Vietnamese, 230 of whom drowned off the coast of southern Vietnam.

A Philippine newspaper suggested the United States accommodate the refugees at its naval base 90 miles northwest of Manila while resettlement arrangements were made.

Second Jubilee Burn Death

An elderly patient died of burns in the intensive care unit of Royal Jubilee Hospital Sunday.

The man, Edward Jones, aged 88, was transferred to the unit Saturday after accidentally setting his clothing alight about 8:20 p.m. in the hospital's Ward 4 West.

It is believed he had been trying to light a cigarette.

A hospital spokesman said today the ward is an area where the hospital permits certain patients to smoke under supervision.

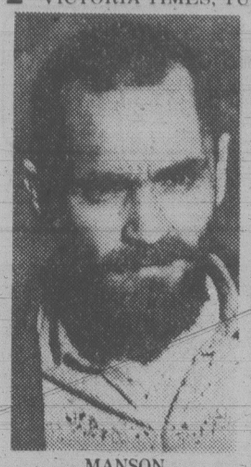
However, the patient was not under supervision at the time, he said.

An inquest will be held 7:30p.m. Monday, at the Small Claims Court in the Provincial Court building.

The fire was the second involving a death at Jubilee in December.

James Pattullo, 63, burned while smoking in the hospital's Memorial Pavilion Dec. 21, died five days later.

Mass Murderers By the Dozens



MANSON

DeSALVO
. . . 1967

NEW YORK (AP) — Their names are household words: Starkweather, Speck, DeSalvo, Whitman, Manson—the mass murderers of our time. Now in the awful silence of a Chicago suburb, the claim of a new name to this terrible list is being unearthed.

Last week police recovered the remains of 28 boys and young men in Des Plaines, Ill. John Wayne Gacy, a quiet man who hoped to one day run for public office, is suspected of mass murder.

There have been dozens of mass murderers in U.S. history. Some are remembered, others have been forgotten.

The first known American mass murderer was William Beadle of Wethersfield, Conn., who murdered his wife and four children Dec. 11, 1783.

The next two centuries are littered with a grisly chain, the bloodiest link of which was Herman Webster Mudgett, alias Dr. Harry Holmes of Chicago.

On the eve of the Chicago World's Fair of 1893, Holmes, a respected businessman, built a boarding house for single women visiting the fair. A charming, handsome man, Holmes wooed his boarders into signing their property over to him and then killed them.

When the house burned down police discovered a web of secret corridors and chambers where Holmes had gassed and then dissected his victims. In a subterranean pit they found the remains of more than 200 women.

Perhaps the most abhorrent mass murderers have been the sex killers such as Albert Fish who murdered several children in Westchester County, N.Y., in the 1930s, including Grace Budd, 12, from whose mutilated remains he made and ate a stew.

Sentenced to the electric chair in 1936 at the age of 66, Fish exclaimed: "What a thrill that will be . . . It will be the supreme thrill. The only one I haven't tried."

True to his word, Fish eagerly helped the executioner strap the electrodes to his body.

Albert DeSalvo, the Boston Strangler, killed 13 women between 1962 and 1964. At his trial, psychological experts testified that DeSalvo had turned to murder when his wife rejected his advances.

In 1976-77, David Berkowitz, the Son of Sam killer, murdered six young persons and wounded several others in New York City.

Two convicted mass murderers, Juan Corona and Elmer Wayne Henley, have recently been granted new trials. Corona was convicted of murdering 25 migrant farm workers in Yuba City, Calif., in 1971. Henley was convicted of killing six of the 27 youths who were homosexually tortured and then slain in the Houston area in the early 1970s.

A number of mass murders have been analysed as attacks against a society which the murderers believed had rejected them.

Steven Nash, who killed six persons in Los Angeles in the late 1950s, said of a 10-year-old boy he murdered:

"He was a kid. It was all there in front of him . . . His whole life . . . fun, all of it. Why should he have it when I never did? Besides, I never killed a kid before. I wanted to see how it felt."

YULE TREE FIRE KILLS BROTHERS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two brothers died early today in a house fire that began when their sparklers ignited a Christmas tree.

Police said that Richard Johnson, 12, and his brother Czerney, 8, were playing with the sparklers shortly after midnight when the fires began. Efforts by the father to extinguish the blaze were unsuccessful.

RCMP in adjacent Burnaby reported that a three-year-old boy was in hospital with serious injuries after a house fire early today. The parents received minor injuries. No names were released.

chide the United States, the country directly responsible for the Vietnam War and the consequent abandonment of Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon, to take up its moral responsibility of rehabilitating displaced citizens of Vietnam," the pro-government Daily Express said.

Philippine authorities have agreed to wait for at least 10 days for answers from the 20 countries they have urged to accept the refugees. After the deadline, the government planned to tow the cargo ship out to sea and set it on course for Hong Kong.

Meanwhile, it was reported in Hong Kong that a 59-year-old Vietnamese man died today aboard the refugee-packed Taiwanese freighter Huey Fong.

It was the first death reported on the freighter since it arrived here Dec. 23 seeking permission to land.

FOUR CHARGED

Four Victoria men are to appear in court charged with abduction and assault causing bodily harm following an incident in the city early New Year's Day.

Police said today the four men, three in their early twenties and one 18, were arrested after an incident in which an 18-year-old man was taken from his home and beaten.

Police said the victim was dragged from his house and driven away in a van before being assaulted, apparently in reprisal for damage done to a vehicle owned by one of the four.

Police say the victim of the assault faces charges for breaking the car's windshield.

All of the men involved in the incident were at a party together New Year's Eve.

Marion Jury Deadlocked

MONTREAL (CP) — Jury deliberation in the Charles Marion kidnap case entered its sixth day today with one juror in hospital suffering from an apparent heart ailment and the others appearing tired and irritated at their inability to reach a verdict.

While signs pointed to a hung jury, Quebec Superior Court Justice Marc Beauregard asked the 11 jurors to continue efforts to reach the required unanimous verdict.

Mr. Justice Beauregard said he might have to dissolve the jury if it could not reach unanimous decisions on the five charges facing defendant Claude Valence in the 82-day abduction of the Sherbrooke, Que., credit union loans manager in 1977.

The judge did not say what would happen if he dissolved the jury, but it was understood the trial—which has just entered its 14th week—might have to be started again.

Jury member Jean-Paul Daigle, 48, collapsed.

School Fires In P. George

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Investigators say arson may be the cause of fires at two schools, including Connaught Junior Secondary, damaged today in an early-morning blaze.

About 60 firemen fought the Connaught fire which destroyed most of the classrooms.

The school library also sustained severe damage following an explosion caused by accumulated gases, investigators said.

China, U.S. Off To a Noisy Start

PEKING (UPI) — To the popping of American champagne corks and the din of Chinese firecrackers, the United States and China have ended 30 years of estrangement and established full diplomatic relations.

Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, who engineered China's opening to the world, raised a glass of California champagne to toast the event at 12:01 a.m. EST Monday. Leonard Woodcock, head of the U.S. liaison office in Peking, returned the toast.

Leaders of the two countries exchanged a flurry of messages and toasts. President Jimmy Carter in a message to Chinese Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng said the opening of ties could lead to the enrichment of "our peoples, both spiritually and materially."

The historic rapprochement also was celebrated at a party in the Chinese embassy in Washington attended by Vice-President Walter Mondale, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

In a remarkably frank statement, China's top representative to the United States, Chai Tse-Ming, said the opening of diplomatic relations would be a "severe warning and a heavy blow" to hegemony — China's code word for the Soviet Union.

The opening of ties with Peking meant the end of diplomatic relations with Taiwan and the official mood was somber in Taipei, where President Chiang Ching-kuo said his country had reached a "critical moment of life and death."

Chiang's father, Chiang Kai-shek, lost a civil war to the Communists and fled to Taiwan in 1949 — prompting the United States to break ties with the Communist government. Thirty years later, Chiang maintained his hostility to the Communists and spurned two conciliatory moves from Peking.

Peking ordered a permanent suspension of the shelling of Quemoy and Matsu islands — two small islands held by Taiwan just off the coast of the mainland. It also offered to allow the exchange of mail, visits and academic, cultural, sports and technological exchanges.

But urging a new policy of self-reliance, Chiang said, "Today our country and our people have reached the critical moment of life and death.

"Beginning today . . . we must stand on our own feet and rely on ourselves as we face the new struggle and write a new page in our history."

Rejecting Peking's unity offer, Chiang's spokesman said, "Under no circumstances will we enter into any kind of talks with the Chinese Communists."

In Peking, Teng headed a list of seven Chinese VIPs attending the overcrowded, 200-guest party on the ground floor of Woodcock's office.

In an exchange of toasts, both men mentioned the role of former president Richard Nixon in healing the rift that opened in 1949 when the Communists won the civil war and the United States threw its support to the Nationalists on Taiwan.

Teng said the new friendship is "a major event of far-reaching influence in international affairs."

Then came a burst of firecrackers — an American bow to an old Chinese tradition. Long strings of explosives were set off by junior diplomats as Teng and Woodcock finished their toasts.

For most Chinese it was the start of a two-day holiday. Endless streams of people cycled along the broad avenues of Peking, warmly but uniformly dressed in blue and olive drab coats and big fur hats.

Egypt, Israel Make Peace-Talk Points

Times News Services

Egypt said today it is prepared to resume the stalled peace negotiations with Israel but will not budge from its demand the Palestinians should rule themselves by the end of 1979.

Israel also said it was willing to have another go at peace talks with Cairo as soon as the United States could arrange a site for the negotiations based on the Camp David agreements.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said the talks could resume in two weeks in Washington, site of the earlier talks that broke down in November preventing a signing of the treaty by the Camp David Dec. 17 target date.

Egyptian state-controlled newspapers Al Akhbar and Al Gomhouria said Egypt would again discuss peace with the Jewish state but would not sign a treaty unless there was some provision of Palestinian linkage.

The breakthrough came on New Year's Eve when the Israeli government said it was ready to negotiate the contents of a letter on Palestinian autonomy to be attached to the treaty, Cairo reports said.

Foreign Minister Butros Ghali said the Palestinian autonomous authority should be set up before the end of 1979 "and the Israeli military administration in the West Bank and Gaza should be abolished."

Unless provision for Palestinian autonomy is made in the letter, Egypt would be signing a separate peace with Israel "and we are not ready to do this," Ghali said.

Egypt and Israel are also locked in dispute about Cairo's defence obligations to other Arab States.

Egypt wants its defence obligations confirmed in an "interpretive note" that would form part of the "treaty package." Israel argues Article 6 of the treaty negates the Egyptian commitments to Arab nations.

Israeli troops Monday prevented the third attempt in less than a week to set up an unauthorized settlement in the rocky hills of the West Bank.

Some 40 settlers drove in private cars to the foot of a hill about a quarter of a mile from their homes in Beit Horon, a border police encampment that they said is not large enough for them and the families that want to join them.

Soldiers arrived within hours and the families agreed to peacefully dismantle their improvised settlement.

Papers Detail Loss of Nerve

LONDON (Reuter) — British government documents, released Monday after 30 years, show Britain lost its nerve and abandoned Palestine when it could no longer pursue a pro-Arab policy against the wishes of the United States.

The documents record Britain's difficulties with France and the U.S. over the question of Jewish immigration into Palestine which it had been trying to limit since 1939.

In May, 1948, Britain, unable to contain the mounting Arab-Jewish fighting, hastily evacuated its forces from Palestine and handed back responsibility for the territory to the United Nations, giving up a mandate which began in 1922.

On the day the mandate ended, the state of Israel was proclaimed and was immediately recognized by the U.S.

Among the documents released was a foreign office memorandum of 1948 complaining that elements in the French government were actively involved in the illegal immigrant traffic by giving facilities to "suspect" ships in Marseille.

It also says the flow of Jewish refugees, funded and masterminded in the U.S., was helped by American officials in the Allied Control Council in post-Second World War Italy.

In other documents, the foreign office notes that while the U.S. state department was sympathetic to Britain's policy, officially nurtured public opinion in the United States supported the creation of a Jewish state.

A British diplomat in Washington complained that a U.S. judge was "acting on instructions from higher up" when he refused to jail a group of arms smugglers with Zionist connections who were arrested while trying to export explosives from the docks in Jersey City, N.J.

And the British high commissioner in Palestine, Sir Alan Cunningham, warned in February, 1947, that U.S. crews were increasingly being used in immigrant ships in a bid to cause diplomatic incidents between Britain and the U.S.

The Royal Navy's inability to control the tide of Jewish refugees into Palestine by ship — sometimes with more than 500 aboard a ship — underlined the fact that by 1948 Britain no longer ruled the waves.

What's Going On?

In a year-end interview last week, Visitors Information Centre president Ted Balderson dropped some intriguing hints about the future of the long-controversial Reid site on the Inner Harbor.

Victoria MLA Sam Bawlf first suggested the provincially-owned site should become a food market. When that didn't seem to be working out, it was generally agreed that a trade and exhibition centre would be a satisfactory alternative. But from what Balderson is saying it seems that plans now are well under way to use the site for that much-heralded hope of the tourist industry, a convention centre.

A convention centre in Victoria would undoubtedly be at least a bit of a boon to the tourist industry in the off-season months when business is otherwise slow. But it would also have many problems — as other cities that have built convention centres can testify.

Moreover, the method of developing a convention centre that is being outlined by Balderson raises more questions than it answers, both about the viability of the centre itself and about other developments that may complement it on the Reid site.

Balderson said that a private company would construct the centre on the provincially-owned land, but that the centre then would be operated by a newly-created board. This is an interesting idea, but the overwhelming question that arises from it is: how is this private company going to make its profit on the development?

Convention centres generally do not, in themselves, make money, as the operators of centres in Penticton, Winnipeg and numerous other cities can attest. Is the private company then going to be sure of its financial position by leasing or selling the centre to the city, the province, or this vaguely-described new board of directors? Does that mean that taxpayers' dollars are going to be committed on a long-term basis?

Alternatively, will the private developer be allowed to make a profit by building other, more profitable developments on the rest of the Reid site? If so, what will they be? Will there be assurances that they will fit in appropriately with over-all development plans for the harbor?

What about the operating costs of the centre? It is a virtual certainty that it will operate at a deficit, at least for the first few years of its existence and probably forever. Will the ratepayers also be expected to pick up those costs through their property taxes?

What kind of market is there for conventions in Victoria? The planned centre is supposed to be able to accommodate 1,600 delegates; is it reasonable to hope that the centre can be fully utilized for even two or three months per year?

What happens to this whole idea if the provincial government agrees to help fund a huge convention and conference centre in downtown Vancouver? Former Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy talked glowingly of a centre that could accommodate 5,000 delegates or more; is it reasonable to expect that the convention business of B.C. could support both that centre and the one planned for Victoria?

What kind of board is being proposed to run this whole operation? Will it be controlled by the tourist industry, or will provincial and/or municipal governments have representatives on it? What safeguards will be available to ensure that the taxpayers' subsidies are spent wisely?

It may well be that a convention centre on the Reid site is practical and that the current proposals contain answers to all these questions. But if the plans are as far along as appears to be the case, the next step of those involved must surely be to let the public in on what is happening. Without information, the citizens have every right to be extremely skeptical about all these proposals.

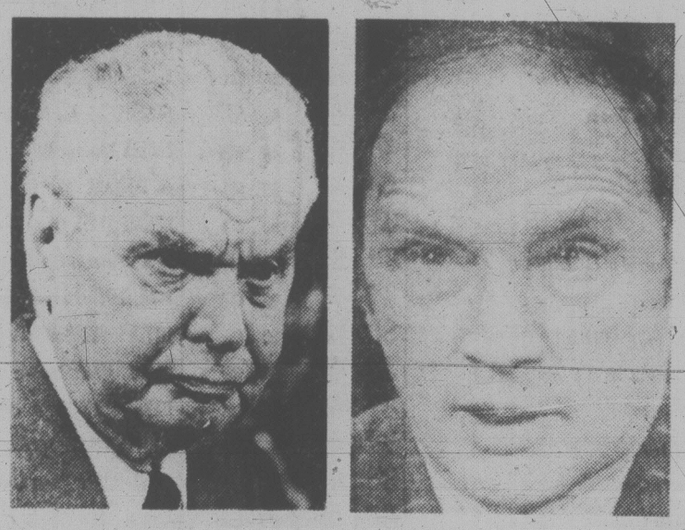
Canada's Leadership Cult

OTTAWA — Irvine Schiffer, the Toronto psychoanalyst whose opinions about the nature of charismatic leadership I quoted in a recent column, made one other comment which perhaps is worth chewing over.

"If you want to upgrade democracy," Schiffer remarked, "you have to begin by downgrading leadership."

For two decades, Canadians have worshipped the cult of leadership. This is, when you think about it, rather extraordinary. Heroes usually don't flourish in a cold climate, and even less so in a comfortable society like Canada.

Yet, in 1957, came John Diefenbaker. He mesmerized us by his Northern Vision and by his messianic character. Today, he is a national icon.



John Diefenbaker, Pierre Trudeau: did we expect too much from them?

Was Trudeau Invented?

Came, in 1968, Pierre Elliot Trudeau. Perhaps, as Schiffer claims, we invented Trudeau, imputing to him qualities of magic and of royalty that we then happened to need in our leader.

The Trudeau era — I believe — now is over. For a decade, though, he totally dominated our imagination. As soon as defeated, Trudeau will rise again, as did Dief, to become that most compelling of political myths — the failed hero.

In between, came the late Lester Pearson. He was less a Great Man than a Good Man, which perhaps is why we never gave him a majority.

You can blame the media for much of this. We take an individual who by luck, circumstance, hard work or adroitness, happens to win an election and put him through what Washington journalist Elizabeth Drew has called, "the magnification process."

By a combination of the insights of pop psychology and the techniques of melodrama, the media first make this particular individual seem larger than life. Then, to sustain the illusion, and to make good copy, we pretend that this leader is actually in charge of events.

In truth, most things that happen — unemployment, inflation, bitching about bilingualism — would have happened anyway, no matter who was in charge. The political theatre that the media invent, television in particular but all print reporters in imitation, requires, however, that the actors be made to seem responsible for what happens on the stage, rather than some off-stage force, like a world business cycle, which the Canadian media cannot get at.

The late U.S. president, John F. Kennedy made us all addicts of political melodrama. (A whole decade passed before everyone realized that Kennedy, while president, had actually done nothing; he had, though, been great theatre.) Author Peter Newman imported the style into Canada with his biography of Diefenbaker, Renegade in Power. It is now a coast-to-coast growth industry.

The media in Canada though, are no different from the media elsewhere. Why, then, has the cult of leadership survived for so long here (no other western democracy possesses a charismatic leader comparable to Trudeau), and why have we been so affected by it that the principal criticism of our probable next prime minister, Joe Clark, is that he is dull, ordinary and quite beyond the abilities of the media to make seem larger than life?

One explanation, at a guess, is that in a decentralized country like Canada, politicians constitute one of our few unifying links. Satirists, like those of The Royal Canadian Air Farce, or Nancy White on Sunday Morning, depend upon political jokes because there are so few other people, artists, movie stars, businessmen, athletes, who would be instantly recognizable from coast to coast. (When not satirizing politicians, our satirists have a go at the CBC, which is our other unifying link: The stock Canadian skit involves a CBC newscast.)

Our politicians thus have become show biz personalities for the very simple reason that we have so few other show biz personalities — too few, for instance, to fill up a late-night talk show like 90 Minutes Live.

Schiffer suggested another reason. "Issues matter, but not that much," he said during the interview. "People enjoy being passive. They don't bother much with issues because if they did, they'd have to become less dependent upon their leaders, more democratic and more involved."

The agreeable part about being dependent upon leaders is that you can blame them for everything, including the fact that they have "made" you dependent upon them.

Surely, no democratic leader anywhere gets dumped upon for as many things as does Trudeau today — from bilingualism (actually, Pearson originated the policy; the failure of our educational system, which is the real failure, is entirely the fault of the provinces), to the weather.

Into a Pickle

Yes, you might reply, but didn't Trudeau since claim, or imply, that he deserved credit for everything that happened. True. But we let him claim the credit, or, rather, dumped it upon him.

Coming soon — I am certain — will be Clark. He will put the lot of us, media and public, into a pickle. We just won't be able to pretend that Clark, a lot tougher and more effective than he's given credit for but in no way larger than life, will be responsible for everything that happens while he is prime minister.

In a backhanded way, Clark may be the first leader in a long time to thrust democracy down our throats. Probably, we'll spit it out and dump on him for not providing "leadership."

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Canadian Fiction Scenario

OTTAWA — A head count would probably show more scenario writers at work in Ottawa these days than in Hollywood. And in both places the scenarios are mostly pure fiction.

The Conservative scenarists of politics have a parliamentary dissolution scheduled for February with an election in April, or maybe later, a government defeat throughout the Englishspeaking provinces, a swing of 15 or 20 Quebec seats to the opposition and then many years of office for Joseph Clark.

The Liberal prophets (when speaking privately) admit that their party could lose the election while holding a solid Quebec and becoming mainly a francophone apparatus — a fate very close to death. But they dismiss such possibilities as mere Tory propaganda or spectres haunting the Liberal faithless since the autumn byelection disaster.

Innocent Abroad

Instead, they tell themselves, and anyone else who cares to listen, that Prime Minister Trudeau has not yet begun to fight; that he will certainly reverse his fortunes; that the nation, on sober second thoughts, will see in him the only man able to re-unify it, whether he is personally liked or not.

Clark, however, is regarded as the government's primary electoral asset — an innocent abroad is the Liberal version, a well-meaning youngster still wet behind the ears, with no ideas of his own, no chance of winning a minor Quebec beachhead and hence no hope of riding the storm undoubtedly ahead.

Another scenario, even more dubious, and contrary to Trudeau's proud nature, has him peacefully retiring by the year's end, John Turner succeeding him (despite some bitter objection in the party establishment) and winning a snap election in both cultural communities.

If all these varied fantasies should be taken with overdoses of salt, the economic scenarios are still less credible, when they usually ignore the business prospects of the United States and the world in which Canada must live.

The Canadian economy, we are solemnly informed, will grow fast next year or it will not, depending on the economist you talk to. Inflation will get better or worse. Wage increases will moderate or explode. The dollar will rise or fall. Statisticians churn out contradictory reports day by day in a danse macabre of whirling decimal points to compound the confusion of the post-Keynesian era that no one really understands.

But in all this wrangle, hopefully called a great debate, one clear and immediate issue is emerging and should be further clarified before election day because the politicians and the economists cannot avoid it. Oversimplified for lack of space, it may be described thus:

Since Trudeau's remarkable speech of August 1 last, the government is committed to the proposition, long denied, that the economy cannot endure any more stimulus, by way of budgetary deficits, than it has received already without an inflationary upsurge leading to a fatal bust.

It is easy enough for the eclectic prime minister to make his commitment on his own, a little difficult for his colleagues to accept or explain it, with no advance warning, but the ranks closed, as usual; the fiction of cabinet solidarity remained.

Then, in the wrenching test of a pre-election budget, the unwarned but courageous finance minister, Jean Chretien (whose support was essential to the prime minister and the party alike) rejected, at high political risk, the massive, popular income tax reductions demanded by the opposition. Though the public did not yet recognize it, the line of future battle was drawn right there, unless, of course, the government or the opposition retreats.

Leaving aside the disputed figures, where does the alternative Clark government stand? It stands totally committed to a double proposition — that a current budget deficit, which it reckons at nearly $15 billion, as against the official estimate of $12 billion, should be increased by tax reductions greater than any possible cut in expenditures; and, secondly, that such pump priming will make the economy grow rapidly, later swell government revenues and, some day, balance the budget.

The fact that the New Democratic Party agrees, in general, with this proposition is incidental, though a queer meeting of opposite minds. The fact that huge deficits, over many years, have not successfully primed the Keynesian pump is more important to remember. Most important of all is the fact that increased deficits would be the surest guarantee of hyperinflation.

Wants It Both Ways

Given these premises, what the nation must judge at this year's polls is the Liberal and the Conservative stand on economic fundamentals — a government trying to retreat from its extravagance and its lost faith in the magic of Keynes; an opposition which has suddenly discovered and embraced it; and finally a public which seems to want things both ways, stimulus without inflation, prosperity without inconvenience, consumption without equal production, higher rewards without more effort.

The fictitious political scenarios will end with the election. The real economic solutions will only begin the day afterward, if then, depending on the courage and wisdom of the next government. In the meantime the public had better think hard about the two basic propositions for it will soon have to decide between them. It had better discount unrealistic promises from either side of politics. And it had better understand, too, that several years at least will be needed to repair the long-mismanaged Canadian economy.

Outrageous

This letter is in protest of treatment I received from a store detective employed under the auspices of Woolworth's department store. I cannot fully express my outrage and embarrassment at the situation described in this letter.

On Dec. 5, while shopping with a member of my family in your store, we were observed by a female store detective. I accompanied my sister to the cashier's checkout and stood in line with her. The time was 1:15 p.m., a heavy traffic period for downtown shoppers. A young woman came up behind me, tapped me on the shoulder, and asked me to come with her. Needless to say, all eyes in the immediate vicinity turned, and not wishing to make an awkward situation even more embarrassing, I complied.

Instead of identifying herself immediately, the young woman led me to the magazine section of the store, not a private area of the store. The young woman then flashed a pink card in a leather folder so quickly that I doubt even an Evelyn Wood speed reader would be able to comprehend its contents. The young woman then asked me to open my purse. Upon my enquiry of the reasons, the young woman replied that she had seen me in the lingerie department, hardly reasonable grounds for suspecting a customer of shoplifting. She also said that she had seen me bend down and pick up something up off the floor. I explained to her that I had, in fact, picked up a slip which had been knocked down by another customer, and had hung it back up on the rack.

It was at this time that a male, whom I assumed to be her co-worker, arrived and stood within hearing range of the both of us, observing the situation. The store detective again asked me to open my purse, and not wishing to cause myself further consternation and embarrassment I complied. The young woman rifled the contents of my purse, and upon seeing nothing of a suspicious nature, apologized and allowed me to leave. I regturned to the cashier's checkout, to my waiting sister, under the eyes of curious onlookers. My embarrassment and outrage were obvious.

I suggest that store detectives be instructed in the proper method of handling their duties. If, and only when they have reasonable cause to suspect a person of hiding goods on their person or in their belongings with the intent of leaving the store without paying for the said goods, I suggest that they approach the person when they have left the store and arrest them. If they approach a customer in the first place, their case should be strong enough for arrest. I also recommend that anyone accosted in this manner be removed to private offices, to remove embarrassment for both the customer and the store detective should the latter be in error. To do less destroys customer goodwill and invites legal recourse.

I value my reputation in this community, and feel that my integrity has been colored by this incident. Shoplifting is a serious problem, store detectives are necessary, but such mistakes should not be made at the expense of innocent consumers. I desire a public apology to clear my name in the minds of all who witnessed this incident, some of who may be employed by other stores in his community. — Susan L. Varga, Victoria.

Sit Down Everyone

President Carter, a few weeks ago, while trying to explain inflation to the continental unwashed, used an example that may have been an unfortunate choice of words.

Manufacturers, he said, anticipate a rise in interest rates so they raise their prices to offset the cost of new money. Businesses, because of the higher cost of manufactured goods have to raise their prices in order to maintain a profit picture, and labor likewise demands more so that it can continue to purchase its share of the material pie, or words to that effect.

Then the great man went on to compare this action with the spectators at a football game, all standing to get a better view and no one seeing the game because no one wants to be the first to sit down.

Apparently the president failed to realize that with inflation as well as with football games, those who can afford to spend the most money get the front row seats and when they stand up everyone behind has to stand in order to see anything and if the front row will remain seated there is no necessity for anyone else to stand. — Donald A. Reincarnation: Science Begins To Pay Attention

By TOM ZITO
The Washington Post

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — For the past 18 of his 59 years, Dr. Ian Stevenson has been cooly and meticulously studying what he scientifically refers to as "cases suggestive of reincarnation." A map on the wall of his office here is ticked with variously colored pins that represent cases of different types; dark green metal file cabinets are crammed with reports of varying detail on 1,700 subjects; an outgoing mail basket is stuffed with correspondence destined for every corner of the orb, the incoming mail is less voluminous, but often riveting in its detail.

"My 9-year-old son talks frequently of another life in which he died at the age of 27 in an auto accident," a woman writes from upstate New York. "His description of death and rebirth is matter-of-fact and without dramatics. Until now, I have not encouraged a full discussion of the subject, as I do not know how to handle it. Of his supposed former life, he knows his name, his parents' names and occupations, where he lived and how he died. His story does not vary except for small details. He insists he was 'told' to choose his father and me as his parents. . ."

This comes from the files, indexed away in a plain manila folder. Stevenson's office — an old, yellow, Gothic-looking building that houses what's designated The Division of Parapsychology, Department of Psychiatry, University of Virginia School of Medicine — has none of the macabre or outrageous touches one might associate with so unusual an endeavor: no crystal balls or witches' uniforms, talismans or ancient books of secret writings. The place is plainly the residence of a scholar, with two Physicians' Desk References the only clue that the man in charge is a doctor.

While reincarnation conjures up images of quackery to many, the topic does have a history of serious intellectual consideration. Greek philosophers pondered it, Nobel Prize winners studied it and Darwin pushed the issue into western thought. In the East reincarnation is as acceptable as the American Express card.

Even in this great land of cynics Stevenson is being approached more seriously — both by his colleagues and by the individuals who write him.

"Twenty years ago," he says, "there never would have been an office like this on a campus, and I'm fascinated by the letters of support I get that say: 'I wish I had known about your research years ago. When Billy was 3, he used to prattle on about being a pilot and shot down and now he's 10 and doesn't remember anything.'"

Stevenson himself, dressed in a tweed three-piece suit and brown Oxfords, seems more like an English professor than a man on the edges of the parapsychological frontier. Canadian by birth, his perfectly-intonated English is steeped in the cadences of Chaucer and James. He chooses his words with utmost care, frequently pushing thoughts into the impersonal realm of "one would think" to avoid any type of bias, fastidiously protecting the unusual status of his medical school division — the only parapsychological unit Stevenson knows to exist on any university campus.

"I became interested in parapsychology as a child," Stevenson says. "My mother had a library on the subject, and I used to read a lot of her books when I was younger. But it was actually much later that I became scientifically intersted in what is now called parapsychology, after medical school (McGill in Montreal) and practice as a psychiatrist (chairman of U. Va.'s department).

"There are so many features of human behavior that aren't adequately explained by current psychological theories. Childhood fears: the fear of airplane motors in one infant, who would be lying out in the sun and become excited and cry when a plane passed overhead; or fear of water, in a baby that would scream and yell when being bathed before it could even speak."

So, one might surmise, one baby had been killed in a plane crash in a previous life, and the other drowned?

"Not that simple," Stevenson replies, "but we can make fascinating correlations. A case I'm studying in Alabama. A young boy 10 or 12 was playing in a house with a friend. The friend pointed a loaded gun at him and shot him accidentally. Another boy born shortly after that named the boy who had shot the other one, described the boy's house and gave an account quite rich in detail of his previous personality.

"The key to this kind of work is careful interviewing of the subjects involved, verifying the facts of each case and ascertaining how possible it would have been for the child to have found out the information himself" — a process some critics question.

"What he's saying is very upsetting to the way we think," says Dr. Albert Stunkard, a professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School. "The trouble is that he's dealing with something that can't be handled empirically. I know there are lots of people who disagree with him, but most of their criticism is done without reviewing his work. He's an incredible methodologist, hard to fault. He's very convincing, but I'm not convinced. Which is not to say that his research isn't valid."

Dr. Ian Stevenson, University of Virginia 'reincarnation investigator'

Last year, after the prestigious Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease published several of Stevenson's papers, readers responded in an unprecedented way.

"I must have had three or four hundred requests for reprints from scientists in every discipline," says Dr. Eugene Brody, a psychiatrist at the University of Maryland Medical School who edits the journal. "It's pretty clear to me that there's a lot of interest in this topic. I don't agree with Stevenson's conclusions, but he's definitely not just some crazy guy."

Stevenson is mostly interested in cases involving young children who claim to have had a previous life, especially when the child spontaneously offers evidence of this previous personality in his conversation. "I'm suspect of cases in which the subject is an adult" he says, "because you can't really control the subconscious influences derived from information to which the adult has been exposed."

For the same reason, Stevenson is skeptical of hypnotic regression of adults into previous personalities, although he considers a few cases "good" — Bridey Murphy, the American housewife; Jensen, who spoke Swedish in her trances; and recently a Virginia woman, Dolores Jay, who says she was murdered, a century ago in Germany when her name was Gretchen Gottlieb.

"One thing you look for in a good case is richness of obscure detail," says Stevenson. "For example, Bridey, who had never been to Ireland nor knew anyone from there, spoke of a place in Cork called The Meadows. It's hard to explain where that bit of information could have come from."

Stevenson is also wary of previous lives revealed in dreams, although he says that some cases are worthy of more attention than others.

"We have the case of an elderly American woman. She has recurrent vivid dreams of being chased by an American Indian, who grabs her hair and begins to bring his hatchet down on her and then she wakes up. In the dream she has blond curly hair; in real life, straight and brown. Now this might be an inherited memory: historically there is evidence that the last Indian raid in Virginia occurred on her ancestral property, and the family cabin was burnt down in it."

Of course, there is a possibility — which might have been proposed by Freud — that the dream is more realistically some subconscious expression of the woman's fears or hopes or even the transformation of some childhood experience.

"Surely a Freudian would argue that way," says Stevenson. "But I think he'd be wrong. That's exactly the type of rigid attitude that turned me away from Freudian psychology and from many of the other rigid appraoches to human behavior."

"I have to admit that the results in parapsychology aren't that good. There have been no great breakthroughs. But there aren't any real breakthroughs in orthodox psychology, either. I don't think there is any real proof in science except in mathematics. You only have probabilities."

Still, whatever the probabilities, reincarnation has tended to fascinate men through history. Plato discussed it in The Republic, and no less a thinker than Immanuel Kant himself seriously considered the paranormal.

It was really Darwin's indirect questioning of the existence of the soul that focused much of the Western interest on reincarnation. In 1882 the prestigious Society for Psychical Research was founded in London (members included Henri Bergson and William James) to apply scientific method to parapsychological phenomena. By 1930, research shifted away from theoretical survival after phsysical death to studies of extrasensory perception.

In 1960, prompted perhaps by several research grants in the area and by the counter-cultural interst in mysticism and drug experiences, scientific studies again were begun on reincarnation.

Meanwhile, in the East the concept of reincarnation has long been accepted, which may explain why a large majority of Stevenson's cases are from the East.

"Actually," says Stevenson, "we don't really know how common these cases are anywhere. I've got 1,700 files. I haven't the faintest idea of how often this happens. It may be much more common in the West than we think.

"It is striking, though, to compare attitudes of American parents, and, say, Indian parents. In the West life begins at conception: nine months in the uterus, certainly the product of the collision of ovum and sperm and the social environment. Personality is asembled like a Ford on the line: It has no antecedents prior to conception.

"This concept generates a tremendous amount of guilt on the part of Western parents. If the child is physically or psychically malformed, guilt is ascribed, just as society judges Ford guilty for defective brakes and 100,000 cars are recalled.

"Whereas in India, children are just people who spend a certain amount of time with the parents. This permits the parents to enjoy the children more, and the children can't blame the parents and vice versa, and things are much more open and less judgmental."

There have been a number of incidents in the West where children began to speak of a past life, and the parents threatened the child with being made a fool or of going crazy.

"My advice to parents," he says, is that if a child brings up conversation about a previous personality, it's all right to listen. If he says things, it's okay to ask questions. If the child says, 'My mommy didn't dress like that,' it's fine to ask how she did dress. But don't pump the child."

Stevenson is currently completing a book on cases suggestive of reincarnation in Burma and Lebanon and also working on a volume discussing the place in reincarnation studies of deformities and birthmarks. He's also completed half a book aimed at the general reader but laments that he tends "to write footnotes and heavy language."

There is not a lack of material. Stevenson is inundated with correspondence and phone calls (which he refuses to take unless the person has previously written) and is forever trekking abut the globe to question subjects and witnesses.

"Some of it's terribly fascinating," he says. "One child in India claims to have once lived in Kansas. And of course there is the rubbish. We dismiss any cases of Venusian fantasies.

"Obviously one hope is to obtain further evidence bearing on the existence of life after death. But as a psychiatrist, I'm interested in how these studies can throw light on half a dozen principally unsolved problems: childhood phobias, childhood interests and nightmares, parent-child relationships, sexual gender problems.

"There is an extraordinary case of a woman in Burma who says she was once a Japanese pilot shot down during the war. She refuses to wear women's clothing and actually refers to herself as a man trapped in the body of a woman. I haven't heard from many homosexuals, but this is a fascinating concept."

After all this, however, Ian Stevenson is not willing to take the final step, at least not in public.

Does he believe in reincarnation?

"I decline to answer," he says. "It's important for me to keep my stance in the background. People have to make up their own minds on the basis of available evidence."

I'm Soft on Superman

russell baker

Some Hollywood hype artists came around not long ago. Slick fellows in purple sunglasses and $20 after-shave. Seems they're making this movie about Superman and as part of the hype they want to write me up, all about the fellow who hired Superman on to The Daily Planet, whether Superman could type with all 10 fingers or was just a hunt-and-peck man — that sort of thing.

I put the dogs on them. Not because I've got anything against old Superman. Just that, as an old newspaper editor, I know you can't trust a man in purple sunglasses to get the facts straight. He's too busy enjoying being stared at to keep his mind on business.

The first thing they asked me was why I hired Superman. That's when I turned the dogs loose. I knew they wouldn't like the answer. The fact is I hired him because he was willing to work for $20 a week, which was $2.50 less than the going rate for reporters.

You've got to remember, this was back in the Depression. That's what people forget about Superman. He was strictly a Depression figure. That's why I can't understand why they're making a movie about him nowadays. You take a bunch of people who expect to earn $300 a week just for graduating from college, a bunch of people whose idea of a hero is their cocaine salesman, and how do you expect them to lay out ticket money on an old-fashioned square like Superman?

Anyhow, this well-put-up kid with blue hair and fusspot eyeglasses comes in and says he wants to go to work and will take $20 a week. Pretty soon I can see he's not even worth $10 a week. We have a dame on the staff named Lois who cannot find her way to the morgue without a street map, and even she is scooping the kid.

The city editor says why didn't I reporter. And I say to him, "Ed, relax. This is only police news. It's not like we're asking him to cover Hitler or Chamberlain or the Depression or something that matters."

But the truth is, I am soft on the big oaf. The fact is, he is a gentleman. He wears a necktie and says, "Please," and, "Thank you." This is another reason I think it's nuts to make a movie about him for modern audiences. The only time anybody has seen a gentleman in the last 30 years is on "The Late Show" when William Powell is playing the butler in My Man Godfrey.

What I like about the kid best of all is his innocence. His second or third day on the job, one of the copyboys comes to me and says, "You know that new guy with the blue hair? He's wearing bright blue long johns and a red cape under his blue serge suit."

Well, I figure maybe he is — youknow — a little this way, if you get my meaning, so I have one of the old-timers check him out. After all, though The Planet is a newspaper, we are not totally dumb and blind.

A few days later this old-timer comes back and says, "Nothing to worry about. He's from Krypton. They dress that way on Krypton."

"Any odd habits?" I ask. "If you get my meaning."

"Aside from flying under his own power after stripping down to his blue long johns in a telephone booth, he's perfectly normal."

all about?" And, of course, he tells me the big ox has superhuman strength and likes to fly around intervening in the police news. He is obviously an overgrown Boy Scout, of which your average newspaper staff even in those days had very few, believe me.

I figure it is no worse having him flying around town doing good deeds than it is having a halfway decent reporter zonked out on boilermakers at the Calvert Bar, especially since he never asks for a raise. What's more, I like his modesty. He is as modest as Joe Palooka and Joe Louis rolled into one. That's another reason I can't figure making a modern movie about the big lug. I haven't seen a hero without a big mouth since Tom Mix and the Old Wrangler were cancelled on radio.

Well, I told the staff they'd better humor him and pretend not to notice that he was really flying around town in a blue union suit being modest, civilized, gentlemanly and too timid with the girls to show them his etchings. It was softness on my part, but I couldn't help it. I figured he was a credit to his race.

Then the war came along and everybody got interested in the real news and, afterward, he began to date badly as gentlemen went out of style. I finally had to put him out on early retirement to make room for a reporter who understood economics. Never figured he'd make a comeback in this day and age. Not an old Depression antique like Superman.

The Toronto stock market edged up more than a point today in light mid-afternoon trading.

Year of the Child Born 20 Years After Declaration

TORONTO (CP) — Monday marked the beginning of the United Nation's International Year of the Child, 20 years after the general assembly of that world body passed a declaration on the rights of children.

And child experts across Canada say they are increasingly concerned about the status of Canadian children. They feel the year of the child is an idea whose time has more than come.

The Canadian Council on Children and Youth recently published a report which concluded that, in a country priding itself on upholding the rights of the individual, Canada's seven million children are born greatly unequal to one another and largely lacking in rights.

"One-third of the population of Canada has almost no legal rights," said Andrew Cohen, the council's executive director.

"Children are not even mentioned in human rights legislation, federally or provincially."

The council's report, entitled Admittance Restricted: The Child as Citizen in Canada, said that more than 1½ million Canadian children live in poverty, one in 10 has an emotional or learning disorder and 80,000 were wards of Children's Aid Societies or in the care of institutions or foster parents last year.

"Children are a group who don't know their rights (if such rights exist), are incapable of defending them and don't even know when they're being violated," Cohen said.

Under the UN plan, every country has its own separate program for children this year. Canada's commitment is short on specific funds and long on hoped-for community involvement.

The federal government has allocated $1 million for projects, but Doris Ogilvie, the New Brunswick provincial court judge who heads the Canadian effort, said this will be stretched thin.

Ontario has earmarked no extra funds, but each ministry has been asked to set aside some regular funding for special projects.

And $4 million in Ontario lottery money has been allocated for an immunization program, a boarding school for children with learning disabilities and programs in sports, fitness and English as a second language.

But what do children think about the year of the child?

A group of Toronto school children, aged between 10 and 12, said in recent interviews that they knew little about international concern for their well-being.

But they were thoughtful and often emotional about what they perceived to be their rights.

Mark Fabro, 11, said children should have a say in custody decisions that result from divorce.

"Sure, it's really hard to decide," said Mark.

"You love both parents and you really want to live with both of them. But we have the right to say our piece. We're people too."

However, Lloyd Perry, Ontario's official guardian, said children have no legal right to say anything in custody decisions.

Ontario had 14,000 divorces in 1978, many of them involving custody decisions.

Eleven-year-old Sean Elliott angrily recalled times he felt he was unfairly treated by shopkeepers.

"It happened twice in two different stores in shopping malls," he said. "I was in line first with money ready to buy ice cream and adults were served ahead of me though they were further back in line."

Classmates chimed in with similar stories of discrimination—from being accused of theft after picking up a fallen wallet to return to the owner to being jostled out of the way by adults in line-ups for public transit.

Many of the children felt they had a right to day-care when their parents, particularly those bringing up children alone, were unable to be at home.

What the youngsters didn't know is that there are 143,000 pre-schoolers across Canada who need day care and cannot get it.

And care for school-age children during lunch hours and in the late afternoon is even harder to obtain.

I'll Win, Says Clark

By JACK REDDEN
United Press

OTTAWA — Joe Clark says he doesn't have a mission — but he's confident he'll be elected Canada's 16th prime minister this year precisely because he does not share Pierre Trudeau's firm beliefs and dominating leadership.

In an interview with United Press Canada, Clark talked confidently of defeating Trudeau's 10-year-old Liberal government in this spring's general election and heading the first Tory government since 1963.

"Canadians are fatigued of charismatic leadership — they don't think that style serves the times or this country," the youthful Tory chief said.

Speaking in the newly renovated Conservative offices across from Parliament Hill, Clark noted that not only was his party ahead in the polls, but he was narrowing Trudeau's decade-long lead in the personal leadership rating.

Trudeau, who has lead the Liberals to three election victories since 1968 but has not yet faced a Tory party under Clark, has seen his lead in a poll of leaders shrink from 16 percent to 6 percent between July and December.

"That's particularly important in relation to someone like me who is a concensus leader — and those are always less dramatic leadership qualities than charismatic leaders," Clark said.

"What happens when you go to a charismatic leader, whether it's a Trudeau or a Kennedy or whoever, is that people surrender part of their own sense of responsibilities for themselves to the charismatic leader.

"When you have a different kind of leader, who makes it quite clear that his approach is going to be to organize the activities of a number of people who accept responsibilities themselves, that means that more individuals will be more prepared to face hard decisions themselves."

The High River, Alta., MP, dressed in his customary three-piece suit, said he entered public life "because I knew I was interested in politics."

"I didn't come with a mission," he said when asked what changes he would make as prime minister. "My mission is to make the country work, to make the system work."

Clark, speaking of Trudeau's efforts to combat Quebec nationalism by showing there was a national role to play, said people who originally enter public life with a specific goal often never accomplish it.

"I see my role as being in part an instrumental role," he said. "We have a system that by and large works. It needs some leadership, it needs some appreciation of the dynamics of the system.

"There are going to be some personal interests of mine naturally that affect the goals that we pursue for the country, but I don't propose to superimpose my goals upon the country."

Project Comes to Full Flowering

Bearing fruit for George Ponask of Thicket Tortage, Man., 600 kilometres north of Winnipeg, is his idea of growing vegetables for his family under plastic. He started with one six-metre-long plastic tunnel and was so successful the enterprise has grown to the point where he now supplies fresh produce to Thompson and Churchill.

PICTOU CO. MINE REOPENS

WESTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — The Drummond colliery, last operating coal mine in the once-bustling Pictou County coal field, will be back in production early in the new year, say officials.

The mine, which supplied coal to the Nova Scotia Power Corp. thermal plant at nearby Trenton, was closed during 1978 after the collapse of an air shaft.

Trade Mission Off to India

OTTAWA (CP) — With the objective of promoting increased trade between Canada and India, National Revenue and Small Business Minister Anthony Abbott will lead a 21-member trade mission to India from January 4 to 13.

Canada wants to sell more manufactured goods to India. Last year Canada imported from India goods valued at $55.7 million while Canada's exports to India — mainly raw materials — were worth $135.8 million. In 1978 Canada's commercially financed sales to India were valued at approximately $100 million.

Horner's mission to China is to stress the importance that Canada attaches to strengthening trade and economic relatios with that country and to emphasize Canada's continued interest in being a major supplier of wheat and industrial materials to China.

Purpose of Abbott's mission will be to hold discussions with ministers and officials of the Government of India in Deli and with the State Government in Bombay. They will explore means of inereasing trade between the two countries.

Of the 21 members on the mission, 13 are senior representatives of Canadian companies involved in mining, power generation and transmission, telecommunications, oil pipelines, pulp and paper, aviation and fertilizers.

The mission will be in Delhi January 7 to 9, in Udaipur January 10 for briefings and intra-mission discussions and in Bombay January 10 to 12.

Abbott said the mission will concentrate on discussions in the fields of power generation and transmission, telecommunications, transportation and tourism, particularly as they apply to aviation and hotels.

Canada wants to step up its shipments and sales of fully manufactured goods to India. Currently most of his exports to India are mainly raw and semiprocessed materials.

Food Junkie Kicks Habit

Margie . . . after and before

CHICAGO — Because she weighed 318 pounds, 16-year-old Margie Vering used to hide in her room when visitors came to her house. She was unable to wear conventional jewelry and blue jeans. Children used to taunt her.

But that was before Margie lost nearly 200 pounds in 18 months by swearing off junk food with the help of a sympathetic dietician.

Now Margie, who stands five-feet-four and is a trim 131 pounds, gets whistles at the beach.

"It's a whole new world," she said. "Before, my life was all eating and staying inside. Now eating is still a part of my world, but not the biggest part, and I go out a lot."

Margie said she lost the weight by sensible eating.

"I quit the junk foods and extra portions. I eat fruits, vegetables and meat and I watch calories."

Margie, who has had a weight problem almost since birth, said she used to take three helpings at mealtimes.

A cousin, Eileen Essier of Worth, Ill., suggested that her mother look into a nutritional program for youths at the University of Illinois Medical Centre.

The centre referred her to a dietician named Paula Calvin. Margie says something special happened when she met Ms. Calvin.

"Before all the doctor treated me like a patient, not a person . . . Paula was different. She treated me like a person and she knew I could do it."

Jet Set Heiress Dies

LONDON — Olga Deterding, the jet set heiress who inherited a multi-million dollar fortune at the age of 10, collapsed and died early Monday at a New Year's celebration in a London nightclub, police reported.

A spokesman for Scotland Yard confirmed Miss Deterding collapsed at the Little House Club in London's elegant Mayfair district shortly after midnight. He said documents showed she was 55.

The cause of death was not known pending a post mortem to be held Tuesday. Last summer, Miss Deterding suffered a brain hemhorrage.

Miss Deterding, who held Swiss citizenship, was the daughter of the late Sir Henri Deterding, a founder and Director General of the Royal Dutch Shell oil company.

Timothy Finds Baby In Paper Grocery Bag

METAIRIE, La. — Six-year-old Timothy Tate decided to walk his dog while his mother made breakfast, but he was sidetracked by a paper grocery bag, strangely placed beneath the apartment steps. Inside the bag was a baby boy.

"He took his dog out for walk and came back and said, 'Mommy, there's a little baby in a bag downstairs,'" said Veronica Tate, Timothy's mother.

What the Tate brothers found was a kicking, 7-pound, 11½-ounce infant, born about two hours earlier. The infant was rushed by ambulance to Oschner Foundation Hospital's neonatal intensive care where he was reported in stable condition.

"It's just sad," Mrs. Tate said. "Somebody must have been desperate. They obviously wanted the child to live because they wrapped him up."

Bruins Shooting At Fifth Position

KARLSTAD, Sweden (CP) — Canada, represented by New Westminster Bruins of the Western Hockey League, defeated Norway 10-1 in a consolation-round game of the world junior hockey championship Sunday night and qualified to meet the United States tonight in a game that will decide fifth place in the eight-country competition.

The Canadians lost their chance for a medal Saturday when they were blanked 1-0 by Sweden, finishing with a 1-2 record in preliminary round-robin play.

John Ogrodnick and Terry Kirkham scored two goals apiece for the Bruins Sunday. Larry Melnyk, Scott MacLeod, Randy Irving, Brian Propp, Yvan Joly and Kent Reardon were the other marksmen as Canada outshot the Norwegians 57-21.

The United States, also 1-2 in round-robin play, defeated West Germany 8-6 Sunday.

Sweden's hard-fought triumph over Canada Saturday in the gold division of the tournament moved the host nation into an all-European final-round series.

The Soviet Union, winner of all three previous world junior titles, and Czechoslovakia had qualified earlier from the blue division. Finland made sure of its berth with a 7-1 gold division win over West Germany Saturday.

The Soviets drubbed Czechoslovakia 9-1 and the United States romped 7-1 over Norway in other games Saturday.

Thomas Steen, 18, a fast-skating centre, scored Sweden's winner on a power-play goal with 18 seconds left in the second period while Canada's Boris Fistric was serving a minor penalty for hooking.

After taking a pass from linemate Conny Silfverberg, Steen faked a Canadian defenceman and then fired home a wrist shot high into the net.

"I saw when the defender went down to block my shot, then it was easy. I had all the time in the world to aim at the goal," said Steen, a member of Sweden's squad which finished runner-up last year in Canada.

The reinforced Bruins had four power-play chances in the third period but failed to score.

Swedish goalie Pelle Lindberg registered his first shutout in the championship and played a solid game, making 22 saves. The Swedes directed 30 shots at the Canadian net.

Several fights broke out during the rough game watched by a crowd of 1,045. The Swedes took nine of the 17 penalties, including four minors within five minutes of the first period.

In the final round-robin series, Sweden opens against Czechoslovakia while, the Soviet Union plays Finland.

Canada, beaten 3-1 by Finland before whipping West Germany 6-2, was joined by the United States, Norway and the Germans in the consolation series.

ENGLISH BOWLERS APPLY BRAKES TO AUSSIES' RUNAWAY THREAT

Times News Services

Steady English bowling prevented the Australian cricket team from running away with the third Test Match between the two countries Monday.

At close of play, Australia had scored 163 for the loss of seven wickets in its second innings for an overall lead of 278 with two days remaining in the test at Melbourne.

England, resuming its first innings at 107 for eight, received unexpected help from its tail-end batsmen and finished at 149 in reply to Australia's first-innings 264.

The home side's second innings started promisingly with a first-wicket stand of 55 by Graeme Wood and Rick Darling but then the English bowlers swept through the heart of the Australian batting order, capturing the last five wickets of the day while conceding only 56 runs.

Meanwhile, in Calcutta, effective bowling also swung the advantage to India's team on the third day of its third Test against the West Indians. The first two tests were drawn.

The West Indians, who started the day at 209 for three wickets against the Indian first-innings total of 300, were dismissed for 327 and India easily wiped out the deficit by scoring 70 for the loss of one second-innings wicket.

The match resumed today.

The West Indians lost three wickets to accurate spin bowling for the addition of only nine runs when play began and their last three fell for 14 runs.

Maryland Asked To Get Into Game

Times News Services

The state of Maryland should buy Baltimore Orioles, a Howard County legislator said Saturday in Annapolis.

Hugh Burgess acknowledged that the proposal would raise a lot of questions, but said he would introduce a bill in the forthcoming general assembly to have the state appropriate $12 million to buy the American League baseball team.

Jerold C. Hoffberger, the Orioles' board chairman, is apparently ready to sell and has been negotiating with a group headed by William Simon, the former treasury secretary.

Baltimore mayor William Donald Schaefer is trying to find Baltimore area investors to buy the team, and city comptroller Hyman Pressman plans to go to court in an effort to keep the team from leaving Baltimore.

But Burgess said the state should get involved, because the Orioles have something to offer all Marylanders and their leaving would damage the regional economy.

The Howard County Democrat said his plan raises some intriguing questions, such as the status of players as state employees, player pensions, and where the club would play its games.

Burgess's legislative district has been mentioned as the site of a possible stadium for a dual-city baseball franchise, to be shared by Baltimore and Washington. It is located roughly in between the two cities.

Burgess said it would amount to a state subsidy for a professional team, but noted that some counties run golf courses and have golf professionals who make their living from tax dollars.

Meanwhile, the Baltimore Sun reported Sunday that the Orioles will play part of their 1980 home schedule in Washington's RFK Stadium, no matter who owns the club. The paper said unidentified officials of the team feel current economic conditions in baseball make an 81-game home slate at Baltimore's Memorial Stadium unrealistic.

These officials, the Sun said, "leave the distinct impression that a partial transfer of home games to Washington should be vigorously explored in the near future."

The Monza motor racing circuit in Italy has been given a three-year reprieve by the councils of Monza and Milan.

Even before the death of Swedish driver Ronnie Peterson in this year's Italian Grand Prix, the track had been scheduled to close this month and be replaced by a new circuit.

The safety of the track has been called into question for some time. Fifty-six persons have been killed since 1923 at the Monza circuit, which was built at a time when cars raced at 60 m.p.h. instead of the current 180.

Monza now will be available for the 1979 Grand Prix, although it remains questionable whether the top racers will compete.

Safety measures at the track since Peterson's death have included the cutting down of 500 trees around the circuit.

Minnesota Twins president Calvin Griffith, known for his aversion to sky-high salaries, says he has offered a pay raise to all but one of his players.

"I must be getting more mellow and soft in my old age," Griffith said. "We've got nine players signed. We sent out 30 contracts and only one player took a slight cut. Nobody else got the same money. They all were offered more than last year."

Griffith's offer to Rod Carew isn't disclosed, but it apparently is not the $3.5 million Carew wants. Carew will be in the option year of his contract in 1979.

"We'll decide what we're going to do about Carew next week," said Griffith.

The one Twin offered less by Griffith was Tom Johnson, who earned $92,000 last season but suffered a sore arm and only pitched 33 innings, with an earned-run average of 5.45 and a 1-4 record.

TOUCHDOWN OR NOT? This was the controversial play in Rose Bowl game in Pasadena Monday as Charles White (12) of University of Southern California dives over the goal line for USC's second and winning touchdown in USC's 17-10 victory over Michigan. But did the ball cross the line with him? The camera says no. But the officials said yes and the touchdown stood.

FIGHT GOES ON FOR NO. 1

'Tainted TD' Mars Trojan Bowl Win

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Southern California's Trojans staked a claim to the national collegiate title Monday by defeating Michigan 17-10 in the 65th Rose Bowl game, but controversy raged over whether the Trojans' winning touchdown actually occurred.

Charles White scored it on a three-yard run midway through the second quarter but fumbled on the play.

Line judge Gilbert Marchman of the Big Ten ruled the ball crossed the plane of the goal line before the Trojan running back lost control of it.

Slow-motion television replays shown after the game, however, indicated White lost control of the ball as he approached the line of scrimmage.

Jack Sprenger, head of Pacific 10 Conference officials, commented: "The line judge made the call on the touchdown. If any portion of the ball breaks the goal line plane, it's a touchdown. The umpire (Don Mason of the Big Ten) saw the loose ball and indicated a recovery by Michigan, but the official on the goal line made the call on the touchdown."

Both coaches played down the controversial call.

"I don't know why you guys are basing everything on this one play," said John Robinson of Southern Cal. "Officials make a lot of questionable calls, but on ones like that, they are very accurate."

"I don't want to talk about officiating," said coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan. "It's a shame something like that has to detract from the kids, but the fact is we didn't play well enough on offence to win."

Southern Cal, paced by White and quarterback Paul McDonald, maintained the west's Rose Bowl mastery in the contest which was punctuated by a mild earthquake.

A tremor, a relatively minor quake, took place just before halftime but did not interrupt play or bmther the 105,629 spectators.

McDonald passed nine yards to Hovy Brenner for one touchdown and White ran three yards on the controversial play as the Pac-10 beat the Big Ten a fifth straight year. Frank Jordan added a 35-yard field goal for Southern Cal.

The Wolverines, losing their fourth straight bowl game, scored on a 36-yard field goal by Gregg Willner and a 44-yard pass play from quarterback Rick Leach to tailback Roosevelt Smith.

Michigan's touchdown came with 7:57 gone in the third quarter.

From then on, the defences took command.

Going into the game Southern Cal was ranked third nationally behind Penn State and Alabama, with Michigan No. 5.

Southern Cal bases its bid for national supremacy on its 24-14 victory over Alabama in the regular seaason, when its only loss was to Arizona State while compiling an 11-1 record. Michigan, never a bowl winner in 10 seasons under Bo Schembechler, went 10-1 — losing only to Michigan State — before bowing to Southern Cal.

Southern Cal increased its Rose Bowl record to 16-6 and Michigan dropped to 4-5 after winning in its first four appearances in this annual bowl.

Sooners Deserve Hearing

MIAMI (AP) — Fourth-ranked Oklahoma avenged its only defeat with a 31-24 victory over No. 6 Nebraska in the Orange Bowl Monday night, but coach Barry Switzer wasn't claiming a national championship.

"I don't know who deserves to be the national champion," Switzer said after his team used the talents of Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims and quarterback Thomas Lott to down their pesky Big Eight Conference rival.

"Certainly we have a great team," said Switzer. "I believe we have the greatest offensive unit in the country. Defence? Alabama has a great defence, Penn State has a great defence."

While Switzer wasn't claiming any championships, Sims was.

"We're the greatest team in the nation," he said. "Nobody beat us. We beat ourselves."

Oklahoma, 11-1, suffered its only setback 17-14 at Nebraska on Nov. 11 when Sims lost two critical fourth-quarter fumbles, the last at the three-yard line with only 3:27 left in the game.

"I think I showed I'm capable of holding onto the ball," said Sims, who scored two touchdowns and ran for 134 yards on 25 carries.

Lott, who had 74 yards rushing and another 47 passing, also scored twice for the Sooners, who built a 31-10 advantage after three quarters and survived a late Nebraska comeback.

The Cornhuskers trimmed the margin to 14 points with just over nine minutes remaining and scored again on the game's final play.

The key play for Nebraska came with 4:24 remaining when Craig Johnson was nailed for no gain on a fourth-and-one at the Oklahoma seven.

The Cornhuskers drove 80 yards in 15 time-consuming plays with tne opening kickoff to take a 7-0 lead on Sorley's pass to Smith.

Oklahoma took the lead for good on Lott's three-yard run with 6:22 left in the half.

PENN STATE coach Joe Paterno is choked with emotion following Sugar Bowl loss to Alabama.

Penn Backs 'Bama Claim

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Penn State had been No.1 in The Associated Press college football poll for the last month of the regular season, but coach Joe Paterno surrendered that honor Monday and Alabama's Bear Bryant immediately claimed it.

"Alabama should be No.1," Paterno said after Penn State's 19-game winning streak, longest in the nation, was stopped 14-7 in the Sugar Bowl by second-ranked Alabama. "Alabama beat an awfully good football team and has as much right to claim it as anybody."

Bryant did not have to be coaxed.

"Yes, I feel we're the best team in the country," he said. "There are a couple of reasons I would vote for our team No.1 — they overcame all the injuries and peaked today, and our schedule was extremely difficult. There were no soft touches."

The Crimson Tide knocked Penn State off its throne thanks to Major Ogilvie's tie-breaking eight-yard touchdown run with 21 seconds left in the third quarter and a vastly underrated defence which sacked all-American quarterback Chuck Fusina five times, intercepted four of his passes and stopped the Nittany Lions twice from inside the one-yard line with under seven minutes to play.

The defence rose to its greatest heights midway through the final quarter after Penn State recovered a wild Alabama pitchout at the Crimson Tide's 19. Matt Suhey's 11-yard run put the ball on the eight and two plays later, its tail was grazing the one.

But Suhey and Mike Guman were hurled back as they attempted to dent the middle of the Alabama defence.

The victory put revenge-bent Alabama in the driver's seat for the national championship it lost a year ago when it finished second to Notre Dame as the top five teams, including Penn State, wound up with 11-1 records.

The Alabama defence shut down Penn State from the outset, holding the Nittany Lions to two first downs and a skimpy 21 yards in the opening half. Nevertheless, the game was scoreless until Jeff Rutledge fired a 30-yard touchdown to Bruce Bolton eight seconds before the intermission.

Penn State's tying touchdown came on a 17-yard pass from Fusina to Scott Fitzkee five plays after Pete Harris, the nation's leading interceptor, picked off his 11th pass of the season at the Alabama 18 with 5:56 remaining in the third quarter.

The Wild Card Oilers Deal Themselves In

By the Associated Press

Houston Oilers are in some pretty fast company—but they're keeping pace quite nicely, thank you.

The Oilers are the only wild-card team left in the National Football League playoffs with just one roadblock remaining on the road to a Super Bowl berth.

That roadblock is a formidable one — Pittsburgh Steelers — but one which the Oilers have already dealt with once this season. On Oct. 23 in Pittsburgh, Earl Campbell scored three touchdowns to lead Houston to a 24-17 victory. The Steelers rebounded for a 13-3 victory in Houston six weeks later.

Now it's time for the rubber match, the American Conference championship in Pittsburgh next Sunday. The Steelers, at 14-2 the NFL's winningest team, thumped Denver Broncos 33-10 Saturday. The Oilers, after turning back Miami Dolphins 17-9 on Dec. 24, routed New England Patriots 31-14 Sunday.

The AFC champion will go to the Super Bowl on Jan. 21 in Miami against the winner of next Sunday's National Conference title game between Dallas Cowboys and the Rams in Los Angeles. The Cowboys edged Atlanta Falcons, the surviving NFC wild-card entry 27-20 on Saturday, and on Sunday the Rams routed Minnesota Vikings 33-10.

The Cowboys, incidentally, are the only wild-card team ever to reach the NFL championship game. They made it three years ago, also in Miami, and lost 21-17 to Pittsburgh. They also lost to the Rams 27-11 during the 1978 season.

"Next week will be a bigger thrill than winning the Heisman Trophy, if everything goes right," Campbell said after rushing for 118 yards and a touchdown against New England. "Playing against Pittsburgh will be the biggest game of my career — and my biggest challenge so far."

It will be a challenge, too, for Dan Pastorini, the flak-jacketed quarterback who shrugged off painfully bruised ribs to pass the Oilers to their upset victories over the Dolphins and Pats. Against New England he completed 12 of 15 passes for 200 yards and three touchdowns — a bomb to Ken Burrough covering 71 yards and tosses of 19 and 13 yards to Mike Barber.

"I hope we're picked as the underdog next week," Pastorini said. "We always play better when we're the underdog."

Defensive end Lyle Alzado of Denver, who saw Terry Bradshaw (two TD passes), Franco Harris (two TD runs) and the rest of Pittsburgh's awesome forces at work, doesn't think much of Houston's chances.

"The Steelers will probably win the whole thing," he said. And Steeler wide receiver John Stallworth, who caught 10 passes for 156 yards against the Broncos, added: "If we play the type of ball we did against Denver, we can't be beat."

Roger Staubach, knocked cold midway in the Cowboys' victory over Atlanta, will be back calling coach Tom Landry's signals against Los Angeles.

Danny White took over for Staubach, passed for one touchdown, then guided Dallas into position for Scott Laidlaw's second TD run of the day against the Falcons. He figures to be back on the bench — except when it's time to punt.

"I feel confident about playing this week if I have to," he said. "But there is no player more valuable to his team than Roger Staubach. He has taught me so much. If I could be a Roger Staubach 10 years from now, it would be great."

If he could be a Roger Staubach one week from now, it would spell doom for Los Angeles, which has won six straight division titles but has yet to get into a Super Bowl. The Rams, however, think this is their year.

"This was the day we all played our best," defensive end Fred Dryer said of the pounding administered to Fran Tarkenton and the Vikings. "We were emotional and it will carry over to the Dallas game."

Tarkenton, perhaps playing his last NFL game, passed for one TD. But he wound up scrambling out of desperation most of the day, completed just 18 of 37 passes and was intercepted twice by Bill Simpson. Pat Haden of the Rams completed 15 of 29 passes, including TDs to Ron Jessie and Willie Miller.

"Tarkenton knew he would have been killed if he stayed in the pocket," said Dryer.

GRANT BACK AT SQUARE ONE AS VIKES TERMED 'DISASTER'

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Vikings returned home Monday, licking their wounds after absorbing a 34-10 shellacking at the hands of Los Angeles Rams in their National Football Conference playoff game.

The aging Vikings are looking ahead to a rebuilding year that may or may not find them with the services of veteran quarterback Francis Tarkenton.

Viking president Max Winter called the Vikings' last five games "a disaster."

"But I really believe we went as far as we could under the conditions," said Winter. "We just didn't play very well from late November on."

Winter said the draft and the schedule make it hard to sustain winning year in and year out. He said only the Vikings and Dallas, and maybe the Rams and Oakland have done it.

"I'm tremendously excited about 1979, though," said Winter. "I think we'll get the four or five good football players we need in the draft."

Winter said he hopes Tarkenton will decide to play another year.

Tarkenton, the most prolific passer in NFL history, hasn't said yet what his plans are.

Backup quarterback Tommy Kramer has indicated in recent weeks that he's tired of riding the bench as understudy to Tarkenton and would like to play regularly in 1979.

So it's back to the drawing board for the Vikings and coach Bud Grant.

Notre Dame Stuns Houston With Incredible Comeback

DALLAS (AP) — Quarterback Joe Montana was sick, all-American linebacker Bob Golic was on the bench with a knee injury and dispirited Notre Dame trailed Houston 34-12 with 4:40 left in the third quarter.

Then, reminiscent of a dramatic rally against Southern Cal in the regular season, the Fighting Irish came up with with the finest comeback in the 43-year history of the Cotton Bowl.

Montana, the senior quarterback who had left the game when he became ill in the first half, sent the drama to the final second Monday, completing an eight-yard touchdown pass to diving wide receiver Kris Haines, who made the catch just in bounds as time ran out.

Then placekicker Joe Unis had to kick the winning extra point twice for the amazing 35-34 victory over the stunned Cougars.

The first time Unis kicked his extra point, Notre Dame was penalized for illegal procedure. Unis made the second try and the delirious, frostbitten band of Fighting Irish fans stormed the frozen field.

Notre Dame coach Dan Devine said: "When it was 34-12, I felt we had to do something to turn it around. It happened when (Steve) Cichy scored on the blocked punt."

Cichy returned a punt blocked by Tom Belden 33 yards for a touchdown that, combined with a two-point conversion pass from Montana to Vagas Ferguson, narrowed the count to 34-20 with 7:25 to play.

A poor Houston punt put the Irish on the move again and Montana scored on a two-yard run.

Then came some questionable strategy by Cougars coach Bill Yeoman.

On fourth and one, Yeoman decided to go for a first down with 35 seconds to play and the ball on the Houston 29. Running back Emmett King was stopped cold by defensive tackle Mike Calhoun and Notre Dame took over.

Montana ran 11 yards and completed a 10-yard pass to Haines, who ran out of bounds on the Cougar eight with six seconds to go.

Then came the incompletion followed by the game-winning pass.

"I was completely responsible for that call," said Yeoman.

The Irish jumped on the Cougars quickly on this coldest day in Cotton Bowl history. Montana scored on a three-yard run and freshman Pete Buchanan charged across from a yard away for a 12-0 lead.

But a freak play on a punt gave Houston its first touchdown on a disputed call.

Officials ruled the punt had hit Dave Waymer of Notre Dame and Brown recovered at the Irish 12. After being pushed back, Houston quarterback Danny Davis completed a 15-yard touchdown pass play to Willis Adams.

Notre Dame came unraveled in the cold at that point. A fumble set up Randy Love's one-yard touchdown run to put Houston ahead 14-12 and two interceptions set up Kenny Hatfield field goals of 21 and 34 yards.

The Cougars scored two quick touchdowns in the third period on runs of two and five yards by Davis.

The final Houston touchdown came after Bobby Harrison blocked a Notre Dame punt.

Dynamo Must Produce, or Else

Times News Services

The money war between the World Hockey Association and the touring Moscow Dynamo club is at a standoff until after today's first game in the three-game series between the Soviet team and WHA all-stars.

The WHA, which is paying for the Soviet club's North American tour, had threatened to withhold money promised the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation unless several Dynamo players—now in Europe—were put on the touring roster.

Ron Ryan, WHA executive director, said: "We were promised that the Soviets would provide the Moscow Dynamo team intact, plus three additional national team reinforcements, for our international series and we accepted the contract in good faith."

But Victor Gostev, in charge of the Dynamo delegation, said Monday his club believes that it has fulfilled the terms of the contract by bringing over a team strong enough to provide the WHA all-stars with good competition.

Ryan left open the possibility that Dynamo's performance this week would determine whether the Soviets receive all the money set out in the contract, or if a percentage would be deducted because they did not fulfill the letter of the agreement.

In Winnipeg, Saturday, Willy Lindstrom fired two goals to lead the Jets to a 6-4 victory over Dynamo in a wide-open game before a crowd of 8,200.

Terry Ruskowski, Lyle Moffat, Barry Long, and Peter Sullivan scored singles for the Jets.

Vladimir Devaytov scored a pair of first-period goals for Dynamo, and singles were added by Vladimir Semenov and Alexej Frolikov.

On Monday, Milos Novak's disputed goal at 19:59 of the third period lifted the Czechoslovakian All-Stars to an overtime 3-3 tie with the Jets before a crowd of 6,243.

Novak's goal, his second of the game, was slapped in from short range past an irate Jet goalkeeper Joe Daley. The red light did not go on since the green light had already flashed.

Czech referee Vladmir Subrt allowed the goal to stand despite 15 minutes of protestations by Jet players and officials.

Jinbrich Micka scored the other Czech goal and Morris Lukowich fired his 26th and 27th of the season while Lindstrom added his 14th for the Jets.

In Edmonton, Saturday, Ron Chipperfield scored three goals to power Edmonton Oilers to an easy 5-1 victory over the Czechoslovakia All Stars.

Bill Flett and Wayne Gretzky scored the other Oiler goals.

Robinson, Robertson Ready to Go

The first day of the New Year may have been a holiday for most, but it was back-to-work time for Victoria Cougars.

Players returning from the mid-winter holiday break reported to coach Jack Shupe for a light workout at Memorial Arena on Monday night as the first step towards resumption of Western Hockey League action. The "resumption" starts Wednesday in Portland when the Cougars embark on a six-day road trip.

The brightest aspect of Monday's skate was the appearance of defenceman Mark Robinson and centre Geordie Robertson on the ice. Both are returning from lengthy absences because of knee problems. Both skated strongly.

It prompted Shupe to suggest both will dress and play Wednesday.

Robinson, who missed almost three months of action, looked particularly strong.

All the players reported as scheduled except Gary Lupul, still in Sweden with the New Westminster Bruins, and four players — goaltender Steve Amiss, Barry Pederson, Bob Smith and Greg Adams — who bolstered Nanaimo Clippers for a exhibition game in Nanaimo against the Czechoslovakia under-18 team.

Lupul is not expected back in time to play in Portland but will probably rejoin his teammates for the road trip's second game, in Billings on Friday.

Victoria's road trip ends Jan. 10 in Medicine Hat and the team will fly back to face the Czech juniors here the following day.

Billings won and lost in the only games played at the weekend. Steve Blue's goal early in the third stood up as the winner as Edmonton Oil Kings upset the Central Division leaders 4-3 Saturday in Edmonton but the Bighorns bounced back to defeat the Wranglers 8-7 in Calgary on Monday.

West Fights For Survival

By Canadian Press

Quebec is in for sure, Ontario is a good bet and the West has it's back against the wall and is fighting for survival — as far as the Labatt Cup junior hockey tournament in Ontario cities is concerned.

Quebec Major Junior League all-stars assured themselves a spot in Wednesday's final in London, Ont., by defeating Ontario Major Junior Hockey all-stars 5-3 on Monday.

Quebec holds a 3-2 record in the series while Ontario is 2-3 and the Western League all-stars are 1-4. Each club has one remaining game.

Ontario meets the West tonight and an Ontario victory would clinch a spot in the final. If the West wins, the club with the best goals-for-and-against record advances against Quebec.

In the lone other game Monday, Riga Dynamo of the Soviet Union defeated the West 7-5 at Kitchener.

In Saturday's action Ontario dumped Riga Dynamo 5-4 and the West staved off elimination with a 5-3 victory over Quebec.

Ontario trailed 2-1 going into the third period of Monday's game and fell behind 3-1. Oshawa Generals' captain Paul McCarthy then scored to narrow the count to 3-2. Bob Crawford of Cornwall Royals put Quebec ahead 4-2, but McCarthy set up Ottawa 67s' Steve Marengere to bring Ontario back to within one goal.

Ontario was pressing for the equalizer but Alan Haworth of Sherbrooke Beavers scored for Quebec at 17:48.

Kevin Low of Quebec Ramparts and Pierre Lacroix of Trois Rivieres Draveurs were the other Quebec marksmen.

Greg Theberge of Peterborough Petes scored a first-period power-play goal for Ontario, giving the club a brief 1-0 lead.

Riga Dynamo, which lost its first start to Ontario, built up a 3-0 lead early in the second period but needed an empty-net goal with 14 seconds remaining to defeat the West.

Edmund Vasilyev paced Dynamo with three goals. Vladimir Sernayev had two and the others were scored by Viktor Dobrokhotov and Anatoli Yemelyanenko.

For the losers, who were outshot 43-23, Ray Neufeld of Edmonton Oil Kings scored three times. The other West marksmen were Dirk Graham and Pat Conacher.

Canucks Still Dealing But Benefits Missing

Times News Services

Vancouver Canucks continue to dabble in the National Hockey League trade market, but the struggling West Coasters have not been able to collect any immediate benefits.

Saturday, the Canucks sent defenceman Randy Holt to Los Angeles Kings in exchange for rightwinger Don Kozak.

It was the second deal in as many days for the Canucks, who are second in the Smythe Division but well below .500 hockey.

On Friday, the Canucks sent rightwinger Dennis Ververgaert to Philadelphia Flyers for defenceman Kevin McCarthy and rightwinger Drew Callandar.

The dealing didn't help the Canucks as Vancouver was shut out, 4-0, by the Kings in Los Angeles.

Neither Hold nor Kozak dressed because the deal did not become effective until Sunday.

Kozak, 26, played 366 games for the Kings since he was drafted from Edmonton Oil Kings as Los Angeles' first pick in the 1972 amateur draft.

However, he has yet to see NHL action this season because he suffered a shoulder separation in training camp. Kozak has played 28 games for Tulsa Oilers of the Central League, however, and has scored 14 goals and 10 assists for 24 points.

His best NHL season was 1975-76 when he had 20 goals and 24 assists for 44 points in 62 games. Last season his goal production fell off to 15 in 79 games. Kozak was to join Vancouver in New York in time for tonight's game against the Islanders.

Holt was acquired by the Canucks from the defunct Cleveland Barons during the off-season. The rugged, bearded performer has one goal and three assists in 22 games so far this season but his defensive play has been very inconsistent.

Coach Harry Neale wasn't exactly thrilled with Vancouver's offense either in the game at Los Angeles. Canucks managed only 13 shots while being blanked by Kings' Mario Lessard, who scored his second shutout of the season.

The Kings, helped by the hot hand of Marcel Dionne, ran their winning streak to a modest third game by defeating Colorado Rockies 5-3 Monday. Dionne scored a pair of power-play goals to boost his total to five in the last three games.

The two goals gave him 28 for the season and put him on course to better his personal single-season high of 53 attained two seasons ago in 80 games.

New York Rangers' fans made a fatal error of omission after their heroes had taken a 5-2 lead Sunday over Atlanta Flames.

"One . . . two . . . three . . . four . . . five . . . We want six!" they bellowed from the rafters.

Well, they got the six they requested, but it was the Flames who delivered. Guy Chouinard set up two goals by Eric Vail, scored one himself to tie it 5-5, then Willi Plett connected with 2:18 remaining for a 6-5 Atlanta victory.

In other action Sunday, Boston Bruins beat Buffalo Sabres 7-3 and Pittsburgh Penguins edged Detroit Red Wings 5-4, coming through with the final five goals of the game including four straight in the third period.

A scheduled game in Chicago between the Black Hawks and New York Islanders was postponed due to a snowstorm which prevented the Islanders' plane from landing.

In an exhibition contest, the Wings of the Soviet opened their tour of NHL cities with an 8-5 victory against Minnesota Stars.

Clippers Win Two Against Czechs

NANAIMO (CP) — The touring Czechoslovakian under-18 selects lost 5-2 and 8-6 in weekend exhibition games against Nanaimo Clippers of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League.

Nanaimo breezed to its first victory Saturday before 2,000 fans but the visitors played a more agressive style before a crowd of 1,300 Monday, when they led 6-4 in the third period before the Clippers scored four unanswered goals for their win.

The Clippers were bolstered by four members of Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League and two of them paced the Monday victory for Nanaimo, which led 3-1 at the end of the first period and 4-3 after the second.

Barrie Pederson scored three goals and added two assists to lead the winners while Greg Adams got two goals and three assists. Nigel Thomas, Dave Wheeldon and Brent Denat added singles.

Czechoslovakia's top player was Milan Razym, with four goals, while Eduard Uvira and Vladimir Svetik rounded out the scoring.

Terry Kliesinger and Blair McKie combined for 43 saves for Nanaimo while Jiri Steklik blocked 35 shots for the Selects.

On Saturday, Jeff Wylie scored twice for the Clippers, who led 1-0 and 4-0 by periods. Thomas, Gerry Bogle and Daryl Coldwell also scored for the winners.

Miroslal Venkrebend Vladimir Svitek scored for the Czechs with less than four minutes remaining in the game.

The Czechs, who play the Cougars Jan. 11 in Victoria, visit Langley tonight for an exhibition game against the Canadians of the BCJHL.

Veteran left-hander Bob Charles was one of three golfers tied at 139 and Bob Beauchemin of Victoria was another stroke back at 73-67—140.

DRIVING by Kelly Dukeshire of the University of Victoria Vikings in final game of the Wesmen Basketball Classic at Winnipeg Saturday night is Bob Magel of the University of Winnipeg's Wesmen. Magel scored 19 points as Wesmen defeated Vikings 81-72 to capture the tournament championship. Third place in tournament went to St. Mary's University Huskies of Halifax. (CP wirephoto).

'No. 1' Up for Grabs; Vikings Falter in Final

WINNIPEG — For a brief time, at least, the University of Victoria Vikings men's basketball team had to be considered No. 1 in the country. Now it appears there are three teams who are almost equalling deserving of that honor.

The Vikings, who Friday defeated the top-ranked St. Mary's Huskies 88-81 in the semi-final round of the annual Wesman Basketball Classic here, Saturday themselves became the victims as the host Winnipeg Wesmen came on in the second half to defeat the West Coasters, 81-72, and capture the championship.

St. Mary's, meanhwile, rebounded from their defeat with a vengeance, downing Bishop's Gaiters of Lennoxville, Que., 105-71, to take third place

Previous to the tournament, UVic had been ranked No. 3 and Winnipeg No. 7, and the Vikings had scored two previous exhibition victories over the Wesmen.

On Saturday, the tables were turned, and it was case of foul trouble spelling most of the doom for the Vikings

After taking a 45-40 lead at the intermission with guard Robbie Parris, who had led the way in the win over St. Mary's, again the spark of the club, the Vikings began to slip when several players were hard hit with fouls.

Rene Dolcetti, who only managed about 20 minutes on the floor after running into foul trouble early in the game, eventually fouled out, while Gerald Kazanowski, Ted Anderson and Chris Hebb all were charged with four.

This reduced the effectiveness of the Vikings and the Wesmen were quick to take advantage of the situation. And it was from the line they gained their margin of victory.

The Wesmen scored 17 of 23 free shots while the Vikings managed only six from 10 free tries.

Vikings commanded the boards with 44 rebounds compared to Winnipeg's 27, and actually were close until the final two minutes of the game when some key fouls halted what had the makings of a strong comeback attempt.

Parris, who had scored 26 points against St. Mary's on Friday, again topped the Viking scorers with 17 points while Dolcetti contributed 15 and Anderson 12. Parris was named to the tournament all-star team.

Manitoba Bisons defeated McMaster Marauders 83-59 to capture fifth place in the tournament.

VIKINGS (72) — Robbie Parris 17, Reni Dolcetti 15, Ted Anderson 12, Chris Hebb 9, Gerald Kazanowski 7, Kelly Dukeshire 6, Mickey Welder 4, Ian Hyde-Lay 2.

WINNIPEG (81) — Bob Magel 19, Ken Opalko 18, Belaineh Degeufe 18, Don Jackson 7, Don Kinaschuk 13, Jim Grissom 4, Don Hutsel 2.

SEVEN PLAYERS SACKED

REIMS, France (Reuter) — A court receiver called in to run the Reims soccer club, which went into liquidation last Thursday, sacked seven players and two trainers Saturday in a last-ditch effort to save the club from closing.

Trainers Pierre Flamion and Jean Claude Durmenia were made redundant along with the players.

Reims, one of France's oldest clubs, will finish the season in the First Division, where it is last, with a makeshift team of a few remaining professionals and some amateurs.

Club chairman Serge Bazelaire said the club's financial crisis was so bad that players recently had been paid out of the directors' private funds.

The players had threatened strike action after the board offered them a 50-percent wage cut with a chance to make up the rest of their pay in bonuses for league points won.

Reims was one of the great names in France's golden soccer era in the 1950s. It gave the French side internationally-renowned stars such as Raymond Kopa and World Cup goal-scoring record-holder Juste Fontaine. The club won the First Division six times and the Cup twice, but it has failed make any impact on the championship in recent seasons.

Golden State Trips Sonics

SEATTLE (AP) — Golden State's defence shut off Seattle in the third quarter as Robert Parish and Phil Smith combined for 16 points for the Warriors in that period when Golden State beat the Sonics 110-97 in the only National Basketball Association game Monday night.

Trailing 65-62, Golden State scored 16 straight points as the Warriors held Seattle scoreless for more than seven minutes. In that stretch, Parish scored eight points.

For the quarter, Golden State outscored Seattle 26-15, shooting 52 per cent from the field compared with the Sonics' 21 per cent.

Smith, who added 12 points in the fourth quarter to dim any Sonics comeback hopes, led all scorers with 21 points. Parish had 22 points and 15 rebounds.

Dennis Johnson and Jack Sikma led Seattle with 17 points apiece.

The first half was close, with the score tied 15 times and the lead changing hands on 11 occasions. Late in the second quarter, Dick Snyder came off the Seattle bench and helped the Sonics score eight straight points for a 56-51 halftime advantage.

Parish sat out the entire second quarter because of foul trouble.

In the third period, Golden State's defence forced the Sonics to shoot from the outside and Seattle could sink only five of 21 from the field. In the second half, the Warriors made 26 of 45 from the field.

Campbell Edged For Second Time

SASKATOON (CP) — Canadian women pulled off a couple of upsets to share the spotlight with a Boston runner at the Knights of Columbus Saskatchewan Indoor Games.

Caren Rathie of Saskatoon Riversdale was named the Games' top female competitor after a surprise victory Saturday in the women's 400 metres, where she bested defending champion Freida Nichols of Barbados. Jan Herringer of Riversdale finished second to Rathie.

Saturday teen-ager Angela Taylor of Uxbridge, Ont., Optimists upset defending champion Nichols in the women's 200 metres.

Arlise Emerson of Los Angeles Patriots won the women's 500 metres, edging Debbie Campbell of the Victoria Mercury Track Club in a photo finish. Friday, Emerson edged Campbell in the 500 yards. Debbie Heald of the Maccabi Track Club of Los Angeles won the women's 1,500 metres.

Mark Belger of Boston was the meet's outstanding invitational athlete after a record-breaking victory in the men's 800 metres. Belger finished in 1:50.0.

Belger hasn't lost at 800 metres in the last three North American indoor track and field seasons.

Bob Reindl's third-place effort at 800 metres and 600 metres was enough to make the Saskatoon runner the top Saskatchewan athlete.

Cal Langford of Winnipeg Raiders was top Canadian with victories in the senior men's 80 and 200 metres.

Fred Sowerby of Antigua, representing Washington, D.C., Internationals, won the 400-and 600-metre invitational runs Friday night but lost to Stan Vinson of the University of Chicago at 500 metres Saturday.

Sowerby's 400 triumph was the fifth straight time he had won the event.

Bryan Saunders of Uxbridge Optimists was second and teammate Andre Lancaster third at 400 metres. Saunders finished second to former world record holder Clif Wiley of Washington Internationals in the men's 300 metres.

Larry Cuzzort of the University of Western Kentucky won the men's mile but lost to Herb Lindsay of the University of Chicago at two miles.

Earl Bell of the Pacific Coast Club defended his pole vault title. He and Bruce Simpson of Uxbridge Optimists both vaulted 5.30 metres but Bell made it on the second try. Simpson on the third. Wendy Knutson of Logan, Utah, won the women's 800 metres.

Kim Wilkinson of the Calgary Spartans Track Club finished with six medals—a first in the senior women's long jump and 4x400-metre relay and seconds at 80 and 200 metres, the high jump and the 4x125-metre relay.

Diane Jones-Konihowski of the Prairie Golden Canadians of Edmonton, Canada's woman athlete of the year in 1978, won the senior women's shot put. Her husband John the senior men's 100 metres.

. . . and another good thing about shopping at home is that you will know more about the Merchant you choose to patronize:

"If you don't know furs know your furrier."

It's and old saying but a true one. And it applies to every purchase you make. Especially today with the increasingly complex technical features of many products in the home.

The less you know about the special features, characteristics, options, etcetera, of the product you wish to buy— the more you place your trust in the Merchant you are buying from.

Shopping around at home, by checking the advertisements in your two Victoria Daily Newspapers, puts you in touch with the progressive merchants right here in Victoria.

Merchants whose success depends on YOUR repeat business and whose reputation for sales and service satisfaction is well known.

Metros Show Class

Give Metro Toyota of the Vancouver Island Soccer League's second division a dry field and a fast pitch and they can hold their own with first-division sides.

That is one conclusion if the results of last week's VISL's indoor tournament at the University of Victoria's McKinnon Gymnasium can be taken as a criterion.

And there should be no reason to doubt it as Metros claimed the championship in handy fashion, defeating the first division UVic Vikings 3-1 in the tournament final Saturday.

Obviously it was "dry and fast," which just as obviously must have suited Metro to a T. Besides, Joe Mendonca of Metros topped all tournament goal scorers with six and the champs proved to be the best defensively throughout the tournament, allowing only two goals.

Mendonca scored two goals in the title game while Tiberio Frias got the other. John Leier scored for UVic and that was significant in that it was only the second goal in the tournament against goalie Carlos Almeida.

Metro defeated Oak Bay 1-0 in the senior semi-final while UVic qualified for the championship with a 4-2 victory over Victoria Athletics.

Spectrum A defeated Spectrum B 3-1 in the senior high school final and Reynolds blanked Colquitz 1-0 to take the junior championship.

Glen Valley outscored Team Spirit 2-0 for the women's title.

In the senior consolation event, it was Vantreights, also of the second division, over Da Vinci (III) 1-0. Vantreights downed YMCA 2-1 and Da Vinci (III) topped their fourth-division club side 1-0 in the semi-finals.

Arbutus won the junior high consolation over Oak Bay 2-1 and Parkland defeated Reynolds 3-2 in the senior consolation. Frank Hobbs and Willows tied 1-1 in the elementary final. Frank Hobbs edged Marigold 1-0 and Willows downed Lakehill 2-1 in earlier games.

Weather Erases Soccer Program

LONDON (AP) — West Bromwich skidded and slid to a 3-1 win over Bristol City in icy conditions Monday and pulled into second place behind Liverpool in the race for the English first division soccer championship.

The wintry weather wiped out almost the entire New Year's Day program of soccer in Britain. Everton's game at Bolton was abandoned in the snow at half time with the teams level at 1-1 and did not count in the league records.

Every other first division match, including Liverpool's scheduled home meeting with Aston Villa, was postponed. Only two other English League games were completed, and not a single game was played in the Scottish League.

Ally Brown scored two of the three goals for West Bromwich. Conditions were awful, and officials of both teams said they were surprised that the referee decided to start the game.

Twenty-seven of Saturday's matches in the English and Scottish leagues were called off because of the heaviest snowfall in 15 years.

The snow wiped out all Sunday's Rugby League fixtures and five horse racing meets.

Monday's results:

ENGLISH LEAGUE

Division I
West Brom 3 Bristol 1
Bolton 1 Everton 1 (abandoned at half time.)

Division II
Leicester 2 Oldham 0

Division IV
Port Vale 1 Huddersfield 0

SCOTTISH LEAGUE
All matches postponed

IRISH LEAGUE
Coleraine 5 Crusaders 0

DAVID SHIELDS

Shields Selected To Team

WINNIPEG — David Shields of Victoria earned a spot on Canada's skating team to the world junior speedskating championships during trials here at the weekend.

Shields finished third in the men's 5,000 metres in the time of 8:26.19 to Craig Webster of Regina, the winner in 8:05.28, and fourth in the 1,500 metres in 2:21.50, an event which was also won by Webster in 2:17.50.

He finished fourth over-all and earned a berth on the team going to the junior championships in Grenoble, France, Feb. 24-25.

For the senior men's sprint event at Ingell, West Germany, Feb. 17-18, Canada is entitled to one entrant and will be represented by either Gaetan Boucher of Ste. Foy, Que. and Jacques Thibault of Quebec City.

The senior men's all-round, with Canada allotted one skater, is slated for Oslo, Norway, Feb. 10-11. Canada's representatives will be Webster or Cam Tipping of Edmonton.

Countries are entitled to one representative for every top 20 placements they achieved in the previous year's world championship.

In the women's division, Canada's four skaters will be chosen by team coach Jack Walters from among Winnipeggers Silvia Burka, Pat Durnin, Kathy Vogt, and Liz Appleby, and Regina's Brenda Webster.

McHargue Breaks Mark

By The Canadian Press

Unreality caught Excitable in the final strides to win the $62,000 La Prevoyante Handicap at Calder racetrack to highlight thoroughbred racing activity Monday, while jockey Darrel McHargue was the centre of weekend action with his record-setting performance Sunday.

McHargue, a 24-year-old native of Oklahoma, broke the single-season purse earnings record set last year by teenage sensation Steve Cauthen by piloting Syncopate—a 9-2 outsider—to victory in the $16,000 seventh race at Santa Anita.

The three-quarters-of-a-length triumph in the third-to-last race of 1978 was worth $8,800 to the winner and raised the earnings of mounts ridden by McHargue in 1978 to $6,155,153. Cauthen's 1977 total was $6,151,750.

In the next race, McHargue rode longshot Sweet Little Lady to a one-length win in the $54,800 Las Flores Handicap. The triumph raised the new record to $6,188,353.

"This really makes my year. It was really a thrill to break the record with a winner," he said.

With a crowd of 29,399 watching, McHargue started the day with a victory aboard Hard to Bet in the first race, a $10,000 event. He finished second aboard Surf N Fleet in the $9,000 second race and his mounts were out of the money in the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and ninth races.

On Monday, Unreality—ridden by Jerry Bailey—went by Excitable on the outside in the last 30 yards to win by half a length. He was timed in 1:48 1-5 and paid $10.40.

At New York's Aqueduct, Wendrous Me proved strongest in the stretch and won the sixth running of the $53,700 Rosetown Stakes by two lengths Monday. Ridden by Sam Maple, favored Wondrous Me circled the six furlongs in 1:10 2-5 to set a stakes record.

Jorge Velasquez, snapping a 21-race losing streak, wrapped up 1978 New York riding championship with a triple Saturday, including a victory aboard Shukey in the $42,925 Beaugay Handicap at Aqueduct.

Velasquez, who tied Jeff Fell of Hamilton with 20 New York stakes victories, posted 222 wins in New York.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

The four-session World Mixed Pair Championship, held during the Fifth World Pair Olympiad this past June, was won by Barry Crane and Kerri Shuman.

Crane is the leading master-point winner in the world, having won more than 22,000 points. He has captured the McKenney Trophy five times (for most master points won in a year). Shuman, a relative newcomer to top-level tournament play, has more than 8,500 master points to her credit, and has won the McKenney Trophy once. This was the first world title for both Crane and Shuman — but it was also their first try.

To win an event such as this, skill obviously is a major factor. But the element of luck also plays an important role. As an example, observe today's deal, in which luck and skill combined to give the winners a top score. Crane was sitting South. Shuman was North.

North-South vulnerable.
North deals.

	NORTH ♠ A Q 8 5 4 ♡ A 10 9 ◇ K Q ♣ K J 4
WEST ♠ J 10 6 2 ♡ K 7 6 ◇ 10 7 5 3 ♣ A 7		EAST ♠ K 9 3 ♡ 8 5 4 3 2 ◇ J 6 ♣ Q 8 2
	SOUTH ♠ 7 ♡ Q J ◇ A 9 8 4 2 ♣ 10 9 6 5 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ◇.

Crane played the queen of diamonds on the opening lead and East decided to part with the jack (which didn't cost anything). Next came the king of clubs, and it won the trick when everybody followed suit with low clubs. The jack of clubs followed, and — you guessed it — East put up the queen (covering an honor with an honor). As is evident, West was compelled to capture his partner's queen with the ace. (Why can't I ever be so lucky?)

West continued with diamonds. Crane overtaking dummy's king with the ace in order to establish a couple of diamond tricks. The nine of diamonds came next. West taking the trick with the ten. West then led a spade, dummy's ace winning.

Crane now cashed his clubs and diamonds, after which he led the queen of hearts. When West covered with the king, South's jack became a winner. So Crane emerged with 11 tricks: one spade, two hearts, four diamonds and four clubs on a hand with which many duplicate players would be satisfied to make nine tricks.

Friday's answer: Permit No. 3511874.

Double-Barrelled Name for Rhodesia

SALISBURY (AP) — A draft constitution for war-torn Rhodesia after its black majority gets the vote was published today and contained, as expected, provisions for whites to retain control of the military, judiciary and civil service for at least five years.

The only surprise in the 147-page document was a stipulation that the country will be named Zimbabwe Rhodesia. This combination of the black and white names for the country marked another defeat for the three black leaders who joined Prime Minister Ian Smith in a biracial transition government 10 months ago.

Spokesmen for the two leading nationalists in the government, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, protested retention of the name honoring Cecil Rhodes, the 19th-century founder of the former British colony.

The constitution is to be submitted to Rhodesia's 80,000 white voters in a referendum Jan. 30. If approved, it is to take effect after adults among the country's 6.8 million blacks vote with the whites April 20 inthe country's first universal-suffrage election.

Right-wing white groups also protested the constitution, and a small white liberal group is urging a "no" vote in the referendum because the two guerrilla armies fighting the government reject it.

However, whites are expected to endorse the constitution reluctantly, accepting Smith's argument that black rule is inevitable and the constitution's safeguards for white rights and privileges is the best they can do.

In accordance with the Salisbury Agreement between Smith, Muzorewa, Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau last March 3, the constitution reserves 28 of 100 seats in the legislature for whites for 10 years, enough to block changes in the constitution. The constitution provides that after 10 years, a judicial commission will review the question of retaining the white seats.

It also incorporates a later agreement that whites will hold 25 per cent of the cabinet seats for at least five years.

The whites' retention for at least five years of control of the armed forces, the police, the judiciary and the civil service will be effected by stringent qualifications for top offices or membership on commissions which control appointments.

Rockets, Bullets Pepper Salisbury Residence

SALISBURY (UPI) — Black nationalist guerrillas fired rockets and automatic rifle fire into a home in Salisbury today in the second attack within the capital in a month.

The attack caused extensive damage but no deaths to the seven people in the house in the white Salisbury suburb of Borrowdale. One woman was injured.

Colin and Jean Shelley, whose home came under attack, said 10 to 20 insurgents opened up with automatic rifle fire and rockets for only a few minutes.

"We crawled through the bullets to the hallway where we sang hymns," Mrs. Shelley said.

It was the first attack within Salisbury since insurgents late last month struck the capital's fuel depot, sparking a blaze that raged six days and destroyed 28 tanks of fuel.

The guerrillas have rejected the internal settlement of Prime Minister Ian Smith has made with three black leaders and have vowed to fight to bring black majority rule to Rhodesia.

Rhodesia's 6.3 million blacks outnumber the country's 250,000 whites 25 to 1.

No guerilla group immediately claimed responsibility for today's attack.

The Shelleys said one rocket blew a hole in the roof and spread shrapnel through the home. A grenade wrecked a rock garden and the walls were peppered with bullet holes.

The Shelleys had returned to their home minutes earlier from the airport, where they had picked up Susan Tyson of Johannesburg, who had come to attend the wedding of 20-year-old Heather Shelley next Saturday.

Miss Tyson suffered slight shrapnel wounds to the head and arm but did not require hospitalization.

U.S. Assassination Probe Backs Conspiracy Theory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a dramatic end to its two-year investigation, the house assassinations committee concluded former U.S. president John F. Kennedy "was probably assassinated as a result of a conspiracy."

The panel, reporting the findings of its $5-million investigation, also said the "circumstantial evidence available" indicated a conspiracy in the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. in Memphis on April 4, 1968.

The stunning Kennedy conclusion, based on scientific information only made available to the committee in recent weeks, contradicted the Warren Commission's 1964 report that Lee Harvey Oswald was solely responsible.

"The committee believes, on the basis of the evidence available to it, that President John F. Kennedy was probably assassinated as a result of a conspiracy," the panel said.

But the committee went on to say it "is unable to identify the other gunman or the extent of the conspiracy."

No foreign powers or U.S. agencies were involved in the possible conspiracies in the Kennedy and King cases, the report said.

But the Justice Department, FBI, CIA, Secret Service and Warren Commission were castigated for laxness, ineptitude and inefficiency in protecting Kennedy, investigating his murder.

The committee's conclusions were contained in a 17-page report from committee Chairman Louis Stokes (Democrat—Ohio) to Edmond L. Henshaw Jr., clerk of the house.

Henshaw will now have the responsibility of editing an overall report.

The committee, which goes out of business when the current session of Congress ends Jan. 3, 1979, gave no names of anyone involved in possible conspiracies in the Kennedy and King assassinations.

It said, as did the Warren Report, that Oswald fired three shots on Nov. 22, 1963 from a sixth floor "sniper's nest" in the Texas School Book Depository Building.

The first shot missed. The second and third killed the president and wounded Texas Governor John Connally.

The trigger-man for the fourth shot, which scientific evidence said was fired from behind a picket fence on a grassy knoll in Dallas' Dealey Plaza, is unknown.

His single bullet, believed fired from a rifle, is not known to have hit the presidential limousine.

In the King case, the panel found that James Earl Ray fired one rifle shot killing the civil rights leader. No one else was named as a possible co-conspirator.

But the committee has revealed evidence that two St. Louis businessmen of dubious reputation, both now dead, reportedly offered a bounty of $50,000 in late 1963 or early 1964 to anyone who would murder King.

No evidence has been produced so far that the bounty was ever paid.

Of the Kennedy assassination it noted that Oswald owned the rifle used to fire the shots and was present on the sixth floor of the building. Oswald's other actions "tend to support the conclusion that he assassinated President Kennedy."

The committee said it failed to find "on the basis of evidence available" any involvement by the Soviet Union.

Cult Money To Soviets?

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — The Soviet Embassy gave the Guyanese government 87,000 Guyanese dollars it received from a member of the Peoples Temple, a Guyana government official has confirmed.

The sum is worth about $31,800 at current exchange rates. The official said the packet also contained two American dollars.

He said the Soviets handed over the money Dec. 8 to officials of the protocol division of Guyana's foreign ministry. The packet also was reported to contain letters, tapes and documents.

Official sources said the Russians said a woman cult member brought them the documents and money Nov. 18, the day of the mass murder-suicide in which more than 900 cult members died in the Temple settlement of Jonestown. The name of the woman was not disclosed.

Cecil Roberts, chief criminal investigator of Guyana's police department, testified at an inquest earlier that he had seen letters from cult leader Jim Jones and others bequeathing millions of dollars in Temple funds to the Soviet government. There were unconfirmed reports that the Temple was considering settling in the Soviet Union.

Guyana authorities earlier seized about $665,000 in American currency allegedly intended for the Soviet embassy.

Meanwhile, police have opened some of the 100 crates sent to Georgetown for Peoples Temple members and said they contained only personal effects, and no guns or ammunition.

Authorities said the crates apparently were shipped by persons who had planned to come to Jonestown and that they may be returned to the U.S. after legal formalities are completed.

Rules Laid Out For Ghana Civilian Gov't

ACCRA (UPI) — Ghana has announced ground rules for establishment of political parties as a prelude to the establishment of civilian rule in six months.

Earlier this year, the military government of Lt. Gen. Fred W. Akuffo pledged to return power to civilians next July 1 and that new political parties would be allowed from Jan. 1.

Akuffo, who was No. 2 man in the government of Gen. Ignatius Acheampong, took over the leadership in a bloodless political shuffle last July following months of disturbances and economic instability.

He immediately pledged the Acheampong government's plan for a return to civilian rule within a year would be upheld and ordered the release of jailed opposition politicians.

The government said Saturday 105 people have been disqualified from holding office for the next 15 years. They had been found guilty of holding illegal assets by various investigation commissions established after the fall of the 1966 and 1972 governments, the announcement said.

Among those disqualified are R.R. Amponah, J.H. Mensah and Victor Owusu — all ministers in the Progress Party government overthrown in the 1972 military coup.

The decree means that several politicians who had hoped to return to politics will not now be able to do so, observers said. Some political parties will have to be established by secondary figures.

The announcement also said that no new political party would be allowed to take on the name of any party that had previously been banned. It is also an offence to adopt any name that has a similar connotation, the official announcement said.

In a related development, the government announced Sunday that a new three-man assets commission set up to investigate anyone who plans to run for political office will hold its first session Jan. 2. at the supreme court.

The committee, chaired by Justice E. Sowah, an appeal court judge, will probe the backgrounds of political candidates to establish their integrity, the government said. Anyone found to have acquired property illegally stands to have it forfeited by the state, the announcement said.

CANADIANS FLEE IRAN VIOLENCE

fore the Iranian weekend starts Thursday. It will vote on his premiership and his cabinet, which Bakhtiar said Monday was "complete."

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said in France Monday he was willing to start with a clean slate with the United States after the Shah's downfall despite Washington's reiterated support for the shah.

The 78-year-old Moslem divine, who has come to symbolize Iranian opposition to the shah, made clear that future relations depended on an end to what he denounced as U.S. interference in Iran's domestic affairs.

The note of moderation reflected, according to the sources, Khomeini's growing conviction that it now was only a matter of weeks, perhaps days, before the Shah was overthrown.

The Canadian embassy had advised its nationals in the capital to leave on commercial flights. However, because of the airport strike and related difficulties, Ottawa decided to send four Canadian Forces aircraft from Lahr, West Germany, to evacuate Canadians. The planes were expected to arrive Wednesday in Tehran.

In an interview today, Kenneth Taylor, Canadian ambassador to Iran, said there were an estimated 850 Canadians in the country, about 200 in the capital and the rest scattered elsewhere. Most of those outside Tehran are connected with various industrial developments.

Taylor said the embassy could not give an exact figure because many Canadians may have already returned home or retreated to vacation in Europe until the situation in Iran becomes clear.

Plainclothes men whom demonstrators said were Savak secret policemen attacked opponents of the shah and even passersby in Mashad, the industrial city of Ghazvin west of Tehran, and in the west Iranian city of Kermanshah.

In Mashad, northeast Iran, the Hyatt International hotel was turned into a hospital after three straight days of shooting.

The opposition claimed an estimated 700 died. Other sources claimed the toll might be even higher.

At least 21 people were killed Monday by plainclothes men who drove around Mashad in private cars firing into the air and at street crowds, witnesses said.

In Firouzabad in south Iran, anti-shah demonstrators attacked the Savak secret police headquarters and freed people imprisoned in an underground jail.

Several Savak officers laid their weapons down, reports reaching Tehran said.

In Kermanshah, residents dressed in black reappeared on the streets after two days of violence in which an estimated 100 people were killed and more than 400 wounded Sunday and another 18 killed and 81 wounded Monday.

Nearly all deaths took place in army shootings, witnesses said.

In Tehran, demonstrators and soldiers fought running battles in the streets on the 11th day of unrest. At least three people were shot and one died on the way to a hospital, witnesses said.

Iranian air force planes today forced down an Irish-owned airliner as it ferried a group of British and Irish air hostesses out of the country, but the plane was permitted later to take off again from Tehran airport, the Irish embassy said.

Sources said a private charter plane used by foreign television networks to fly film out of Iran was also forced down by the jet fighters.

No injuries were reported in either incident.

Iranian officials claimed the media charter flight had not conformed with normal flight clearance procedures.

Inflation Worried King In '48

By JOHN FERGUSON
Canadian Press

OTTAWA—Former prime minister William Lyon Mackenzie King worried in 1948 that inflation was about to get out of hand and "was like a prairie fire which, if it was not stamped out soon, would consume the government itself."

King wrote in his personal diaries for that year, released at the public archives today, he was determined to set up a parliamentary committee to look into the issue and deflect criticisms of his government by the public, the press and the opposition.

The situation faced by King's government, which was winding down rigid price controls to control inflation during the Second World War, paralleled that of the Trudeau government today which also faces rising inflation at the end of a controls period.

King wrote that setting up an all-party parliamentary committee to gather facts on rising prices would deflect the attack from his Liberal government and "MPs would have to bear the attack themselves."

"I do not think people want others to be prosecuted or to exact penalties or to put people in jail or to deny fair profits to anyone," he wrote Jan. 3, 1948. "But they do want to know the facts."

"I myself wanted to know why apples should be five cents a piece when there are quantities of apples in every community that should be sold for a very small price."

The 1948 diaries, among some 64,000 pages of the former prime minister's personal thoughts written between 1893 and 1950, were released to the general public for the first time today.

In 1,100 pages, the 1948 diaries give detailed accounts of King's activities during his last year as prime minister. King, who turned 74 on Dec. 17, 1947, stepped down at prime minister Nov. 15, 1948, turning over power to Louis St. Laurent.

At that time, King held the record for having served the longest period in office of any prime minister in the Commonwealth, a total of 21 years since he was first elected in 1921. He achieved the record, previously held by Britain's Sir Robert Walpole, in April, 1948.

It was also a busy time on the international scene for King who once held the external affairs portfolio at the same time he was prime minister and kept up a strong interest in foreign happenings.

The pace of the Cold War quickened with the Communist takeover of Czechoslovakia in February and the Russian blockade of Berlin in April. The diaries contain a number of references to King's concerns that a third world war was close at hand because of Soviet expansionism.

During this period, Canadian representatives were participating in highly secret meetings with the British and the Americans to discuss the formation of an "Atlantic Security Pact" which was born as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) a year later in 1949.

May, 1948, saw the proclamation of the State of Israel, about which King had misgivings. He feared the resulting conflict would escalate into a Great Power conflict which could threaten the security of Western-owned oil fields in Arab countries.

The diaries for 1948 are again filled with accounts of King's dreams and seances with which he was obsessed throughout his life.

Gentle Quake Touches City

Times News Services

A mild earthquake measuring only 4 on the Richter scale Saturday evening was barely noticeable in Greater Victoria, a spokesman for the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory said today.

The quake occurred at 7:26 p.m. and lasted between five and 10 seconds.

An earthquake with a measurement of 4 is too slight to cause damage, the spokesman said.

Bud O'Dell of the Newport Observatory in Eastern Washington state said the epicentre of the quake was north of Everett.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude.

An earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter scale can cause slight damage in the local area. Four can cause moderate damage and five considerable damage.

Meanwhile, a moderate earthquake rumbled through Southern California New Year's Day dumping dirt and rocks on roads and shattering windows but almost unnoticed by 100,000 football fans at the Rose Bowl.

The 40-second quake caused little damage — mostly shaking dishes and rattling many nerves. Fire, police and newspaper switchboards were swamped with calls moments after the 3:11 p.m. PST quake, mostly from the curious and the scared.

A Los Angeles Police spokesman put in simply: "Everybody pretty much shrugged and remembered they were in Southern California and let it go at that."

Breakup In Cable Jams Calls

MONTREAL (CP) — A failure in a transatlantic telephone cable Sunday night caused a backlog of New Year's phone calls between Canada and Europe, Teleglobe Canada officials said.

The exact nature of the failure, which occurred near Widemouth Bay, the British terminal of the Cantat 2 cable, has not been determined.

Traffic from the cable's 600 circuits was being diverted to satellite service, and Teleglobe said full service would be restored early today.

The breakdown caused delays of two to three hours on calls to Europe, while domestic telelphone systems refused to place other overseas calls during one of the busiest times of the year.

Storms Leave U.S., Europe in Chaos power was cut to about 10 communities.

In the U.S., heavy snow and ice extended over an area stretching from the far west across the midwest and into the south. Temperatures were below -18 Celsius over most of the northern plains, including all of North Dakota.

The worst of the cold snap appears over in Washington state, but utility officials were still urging conservation of electricity as businesses and schools reopened today.

A warming trend was predicted to begin by tonight after about 10 days during which the temperature had remained below freezing in most of the state. Power outages resulting from overloads had been reported throughout the state.

"If the weather continues the same, we'll face a serious situation unless we get co-operation from the entire public," said Bill Merry of Puget Sound Power and Light Co.

Sterling Munro, Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) chief, said the federal agency was buying 100 megawatts of power from British Columbia Hydro to meet record power demands.

A large area of Texas was blasted by snow, freezing rain and drizzle. A utility official in Dallas said an ice storm that moved into the area Saturday night and lingered until Monday was "the worst in 30 years."

Thousands of residents in the Dallas-Fort Worth area were without electricity after power lines snapped under the weight of ice or were felled by ice-laden trees. Dallas Power and Light Co. said that about 20,000 homes still were without electrical service Monday.

The Cotton Bowl football game in Dallas Monday was sparsely attended. About 50,000 ticket holders failed to show up to see Notre Dame edge the University of Houston in the 72,000-seat stadium.

Up to 25 centimetres of snow fell in Illinois on Sunday, forcing officials to temporarily close O'Hare International Airport, the world's busiest. Thousands of holiday travellers retreated to hotels to wait out the storm.

Storm-related highway deaths over the holiday weekend killed at least three other persons, one each in Wisconsin, Missouri and Kansas.

In the South, freezing rain fell in Kentucky and Arkansas, and the weather service issued an ice-storm warning for northwestern Louisiana.

ladder and went out on the ice toward them," he said.

"But the ice started to crack up under me so I just slipped the ladder over to them and raced back to land again."

One man got out of the water and made his way to shore but the other two were still in the water. "The ice broke up under me so I had to jump in and paddle up and over the ice to get to them."

"The woman climbed back along the ladder to the canoe and we started back. I thought we were going to tip over once but we made it."

He rescued the man in another trip, using rope and a pole after the ladder sank.

In Victoria, an 11-year-old boy was pulled from the near-freezing water at Fisherman's Wharf Saturday after he fell in throwing rocks at a chunk of ice.

David Engbers, 132 Michigan, suffered no apparent ill effects after his two companions, Nicholas Coopey, 7, and brother Martin Engbers, 9, rescued him.

The boys said an adult couple stood watching the incident without lending a hand, then told David to run home in his drenched clothing.

After a Brandy, World-Wide Relay

By AB KENT
Times Staff

HAVING A BRANDY and coffee overlooking frozen Lake Balaton in the gloom of a Hungarian winter had a happy spinoff for a Victoria researcher last year.

Although not the stuff great scientific discoveries are made of, the incident demonstrates for Dr. Michael Ashwood-Smith the human aspects of highly technical pursuits that cross international boundaries.

Ashwood-Smith is a University of Victoria biologist granted funds by the National Research Council to investigate genetic phenomena, in which he collaborates with colleagues at the University of Alberta, York University and the Institute of Radiobiology in Budapest.

During a visit to Hungary last winter, finishing lunch at a resort on Central Europe's largest lake where he had been taken by associate Shando Igali, the talk turned to the use of chemicals and ultraviolet radiation to treat psoriasis — one of the applications of their research.

The two decided it might be in the best interests of patients who are given this kind of medical treatment to stay away from sunlight for a while afterward, and in a brief letter to the British Medical Journal outlined their reasons.

BMJ subsequently printed the letter and physicians in all parts of the world were able to read it and take notice.

"It was only a five-minute conversation, but this idea came out of it," Ashwood-Smith said. It was an example of the way scientists collaborate through the Iron Curtain, or anywhere else in the world where scientific interests are shared.

In the past year and a half, work on ultraviolet radiation and chromosome damage has been conducted by Ashwood-Smith in conjunction with others in the department of biology and the chemistry department at UVic, in chemistry and genetics departments at the University of Alberta, in biology at York University, and at the Budapest institute.

Some has been organized and formally funded and the rest has been an informal arrangement between colleagues, Ashwood-Smith said. For three years the research council provided about $13,500 a year for the work. This year, and for the next two years, NRC is providing $25,000 a year.

Most is spent on salaries for the painstaking hours of peering into miscroscopes, analysing and charting the data obtained. Specimen slides in the tens of thousands have been accumulated in the past few years, and the salaries of good technicians keep rising, the biologist noted.

For a number of years before coming to Canada, Ashwood-Smith worked on radiation effects at the U.K. Atomic Energy Agency, and decided to continue this area of research in a modified way by studying ultraviolet effects.

Working with his Hungarian accomplice, using bacteria, viruses and cultured animal cells, they studied the effects of UV light on the cells in combination with natural chemicals known as psoralens. These concentrate in such plants as celery, figs and parsley and their effects go back into folklore.

Essentially, they are without biological activity, but in combination with UV they can be dangerous, particularly if certain fungi happen to be present, Ashwood-Smith said.

They begin reacting with skin cells and have an effect on nucleic acid, the DNA which is a chief ingredient of mammalian chromosomes that determine sex and individual characteristics.

At the very least this combination of UV and psoralens appears to damage chromosomes, which may have far-reaching genetic implications, but lethal agents also are produced resulting in cell damage.

The ancients noticed the pigmenting effect of sunlight on the skin of celery harvesters, or persons smeared with the juice of certain other plants, which happened to contain psoralens, and dark-skinned people used this as a cosmetic treatment for white blotches.

Contemporary treatment of psoriasis, for which there is no known cure, involves the administration of chemical psoralens with controlled UV light, the effect of which is to preferentially kill off those skin cells that are causing the affliction by dividing too fast.

But citing a third area of application, Ashwood-Smith said it was "disgraceful" that in France and other countries — but not Canada — there is widespread use of popular but potent patent preparations like the suntanning lotion Bergasol, which contains psoralens.

True, it will protect the skin from further solar radiation, but meanwhile it has damaged the DNA in skin cells. Heavily and attractively advertised in posters and magazines across Europe, Bergasol is sold at every bathing spa and ski resort in such quantity that Ashwood-Smith thinks it could also be an ecological hazard to micro-organisms in lakes and streams where it washes off the bronzing bodies of sunseekers.

"Every chemical that changes DNA has a problem," Ashwood-Smith said. He could see no need for the dangerous use of psoralens in cosmetics.

BUT IN RESEARCH, using cultured cells — animals or humans are not used in this work — scientists may discover more about fundamental problems, enabling them to understand more about genetic change and cell damage.

While collaborating with UVic physicist Dr. Gerhart Friedmann, using x-ray radiation on psoralens, Ashwood-Smith compared the effects with UV light. They found an equal amount of chromosome damage produced the same amount of cell kill, indicating exposure to either is equally risky.

The biologist stressed again the value of associations with others in the community of shared knowledge. This time it was through UVic chemist Reg Mitchell, who made one of the key psoralen compounds, angelicin, used in the experiments because of its specific effect on DNA.

When word of this got around, Ashwood-Smith began getting letters until he has now had about 20 requests from around the world for small quantities of the chemical.

He sends them off without charge, adding to his contacts and knowledge of the subject.

"When a colleague asks you for something, you try to accommodate him. So you have a collaboration with these places, like Harvard, University of Dundee and London."

In that respect, Ashwood-Smith and Mitchell can take some credit for supplying biological research with a useful genetic probe.

The results can be as helpful as meeting a colleague in his own laboratory, without the expense of global jet travel.

BLACK FINGERS etched against the evening sky, this leafless tree seems to be bracing itself for another night of biting frost as temperatures dip. But who can be pessimistic in Canada's banana belt? Already bulbs are bravely sprouting, soon there'll be the flower count and spring will have sprung before you know it. It's not really winter, just an illusion. You should keep telling yourself that.

Broadmead Appeal Probable

A spokesman for the developers Broadmead Farms Ltd. said today the company will probably appeal the B.C. Supreme Court judgment last month which quashed the bylaw for the proposed Minnie Mountain development at Ten Mile Point.

Broadmead general manager Gordon Rolston said a final decision won't be made until after the firm's solicitors have studied Mr. Justice William Trainor's written decision.

But he added: "I think we have made a decision, even if it hasn't been finalized. The feeling of the company is that we will appeal."

Broadmead Farms Ltd. believes it has a strong enough case to warrant taking the matter to appeal, he said.

In quashing the bylaw Trainor found there was a reasonable apprehension of bias by the ordinary citizen because Ald. David Paterson voted for the bylaw, which received 5-4 approval by Saanich council last October.

Paterson, a chartered accountant, is the office manager for the solicitors Pearlman and Lindholm, which provides legal services to Saanich municipality.

Paterson said today he, too, has not had an opportunity to discuss his own situation with his lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood, following the court ruling.

But for the time being at least he considers there is no real change in his aldermanic role.

"My view is that I have all the powers, responsibilities and voting rights of any other alderman," he said.

"I will continue to exercise my right to vote and carry on my functions as an alderman for the next little while."

Paterson said if Broadmead's appeal is successful it will vindicate his own position, but if not he will have a major decision to make.

"In that case I will probably feel, why should my employer suffer in even the smallest way just because of my position on council," he added.

$20,000 Loss In Boat Blaze

A faulty oil burner is believed responsible for a fire that caused $20,000 damage to the forward cabin and wheelhouse of the 40-foot troller Western Sea on Monday at 9:25 p.m..

The boat, owned by Tom Chalmers, 511 Pearkes in Colwood, was tied up at Fishermen's Wharf on Erie Street.

Professionals Eyed On Sex Harassment

Victoria Rape Relief has begun a research project to determine the extent of sexual harassment of women by professionals.

The organization has taken out newspaper ads asking women who have been harassed within the past five years to get in touch with the rape relief centre.

Staff member Rowena Hunnisett said today the research project was begun partly as a result of a recent case in Vancouver where an optician pleaded guilty to sexually harassing several of his clients.

It also stems from an increasing amount of documented evidence that women are subjected to various forms of sexual harassment from professional men as well as professional women being harassed by their clients.

As a result of the increasing publicity on the subject women are beginning to speak up more, Hunnisett said.

"For so long women have been afraid to confront the professionals they go to who are harassing them," she said.

Hunnisett defined sexual harassment as a minor form of sexual assault which could mean anything from pressure to engage in sexual intercourse to touching and fondling or even psychological pressure of a sexual nature.

At times it takes the form of a professional telling a patient that it is in her interests to go to bed with him, Hunnisett said.

Although Rape Relief is focusing on this kind of sexual harassment, Hunnisett said women being harassed on the job is another area of growing concern.

She said although Rape Relief is convinced these things are happening in the Victoria area, the organization has no idea of the extent of the problem.

It is hoped that the research project will shed more light on the situation and provide the group with some facts to back up their case.

Hunnisett said it will likely take two or three months to complete the project. She added that Rape Relief is not certain what action, if any, will be taken if a number of women do come forward with sexual harassment stories.

That will depend on the nature of the case and also the woman involved.

Q. Who holds the record for bricklaying? S.R.

A. Kevlin Temple, of Alnwick Northumberland, England. He laid 6,429 bricks in foundation brickwork in eight hours on April 30, 1976. He was backed up by a five-man gang. They mixed the mortar and handed the bricks, but Temple performed all the trowel work and laid on the mortar beds.

They Broke the Ice, Then Went for Swim

They had to break a hole in the ice but polar bear swimmers New Year's Day did their customary thing to the delight of an estimated 700 spectators at Beaver Lake.

Organizer Ken Cangylswyk, of the Netherlands Association of Vancouver Island, said he used a sledge hammer to smash a 16-foot swimming hole in the four to five-inch thick ice.

"It took me about 45 minutes to break the hole," he said, three times as long as his stay in the 2 degrees water.

Eighteen swimmers, including five women and a German shepherd, mostly made an in-and-out-dip compared with Canglyswyk's feat.

"I stayed about 15 minutes. I was the organizer and I couldn't let them down."

At Willows Beach, 19 men from HMCS Kootenay and one from their destroyer squadron headquarters staff went for a dip.

Two Men Injured In Boat Collision

Two men have been released from hospital following a weekend boat collision near Oak Bay Marina.

Stuart Fraser, 19, of 2261 Estevan, and David Holland, 19, of 2380 Musgrave, received leg injuries when their inflatable 20-horsepower Zodiac rescue craft was in collision with an 18-foot fibreglass boat driven by Henry Scott, 512 Fraser.

The Zodiac collapsed from the force of the collision, tossing Fraser into the water.

Scott, whose boat had a 135-horsepower motor, said today he was heading for the marina and was in midchannel to avoid another vessel that was coming in quickly from behind and to his right.

"I had started to slow down when the Zodiac came around the corner and we had no more than three seconds to try to avoid a collision."

Fraser and Holland were on their way to the Cattle Point boat ramp at 2:30 p.m. Saturday when the mishap occurred. They were returning the Zodiac to the Oak Bay police station after using it the night before in a late-night rescue operation involving duck hunters on Mary Tod Island.

Holland described the collision: "The last I saw my partner he was about five feet in the air. I saw the bottom of the other boat hull going over my head. That terrified me.

"I thought I would hit the propellers. 'Oh, my God,' I thought, 'I'm going right through his propellers.'"

But the vessels bounced away from each other at that point.

If It Isn't a Stake, It's a Weaver!

ON MY DESK SITS A LOP-sided little basket with a sheaf of pencils jutting from it. In spite of its tippiness, its hit-or-miss weaving and its uneven lip, I'm ridiculously proud of that basket. Made it all by myself, I did, as the first assignment in an Indian basketry course given by anthropologist Joy Inglis. And with it, I have finally laid the ghost of grim Miss Dove.

Miss Dove had dominion over a Grade 1 class in the prairie school where education first got its hooks in me. She also had a ruler — it looked big as a club to a blundering, terrified small boy — with which she pounded the knuckles of the stupid or forgetful.

I was both. At basket-making, a manual ordeal which occupied our Friday afternoons, I was especially dense. The ruler descended frequently.

When Win, these many years later, suggested that I sign up for the basketry course with her, a long-buried uneasiness stirred in my subconscious.

"Uh-uh," I said. "That kind of jazz isn't for men."

My dear one dealt neatly with that argument.

"A couple of other men are taking it," she said. "And if you don't, you'll have a long, dull Monday evening alone while I'm having fun on Quadra Island."

So, against my better judgment, I signed up for the course, which was to be held in Cape Mudge village community hall.

On Monday evening, we took the ferry from Campbell River to Quathiaski Cove on the other side of Discovery Passage, then drove out by a woods road in the wintry dark to the Kwakiutl village. We found the community hall, a fine, large bulding, set back from the main street. A spectacular Susiutle, a two-headed monster from Indian myth, was painted across its front. Light escaped from its windows.

The prospective basket-makers had foregathered in one corner. Against the wall, our instructor appeared to be grappling with a thick brown snake. The snake resolved itself into a bundle of very long, limber splints, tied together at one end, and secure to a wall-hook.

Mrs. Inglis turned briskly to us with a batch of splints in hand. These, she explained, would be our weavers. Now she issued us with little bundles of stakes — short, heavier splints, which would provide framework and backbone for our baskets.

We would take five stakes thus, and lay another five across them so, then attach two of the weavers.

Her clever hands demonstrated. The procedure, as she executed it, looked easy as falling off a log.

I stole a glance at Win. Her fingers were busy. She, at least, didn't appear to be having any trouble.

My own fingers groped and fumbled. In a state bordering on panic I regrouped my stakes, took a firm grip on the slithery weavers, and started again.

With the base of her basket well-established, Win looked my way.

"Oh, boy!" she said unfeelingly. "What a mess!"

I became aware that a presence was bending over me. My fingers turned to sausages. Any moment now, the cruel ruler would come down on my knuckles.

But past is past, and in this present it was only Joy Inglis, who with all the kindness in the world, pointed out my error and started me right.

After that, Miss Dove's shade haunted me no longer. My basket acquired a bottom, and tier by tier, its sides began to climb.

We learned the necessity of keeping our materials pliable by soaking them in a bucket of water at intervals. Presently when our first weavers were used up, we were taught how to work others into our expanding baskets.

Pleased though I am with my handiwork, far be it from me to describe it as a thing of beauty. There are flaws. It has insisted on moulding itself into the shape of an old-fashioned spitoon.

But I have already laid the groundwork for my next basket, which will be bigger and better.

This is one of those lackadaisical days.

The Yuletide is over. We're on the verge of getting back to the ordinary routines of life.

In most homes the last bit of turkey is eaten. The bones are — or soon will be — simmering in soup pots.

And it's quite likely that, in some kitchens, a good beef stew is in the making.

Every-day menus are being returned to the fronts of recipe boxes in place of those that feature mince pies, trifles and plum puddings.

By Saturday there will be a grand clean-up, as holiday greens are taken down — the tree, the cedar boughs, pine cones, holly and the tinsel and baubles.

Mothers and fathers, children too, will be sweeping up the pine needles, putting decorations carefully away, airing out the rooms and getting rid of every speck of dust.

Why? Because Saturday brings Twelfth Night, the eve before Epiphany Sunday.

In medieval times Christmas festivities concluded on Twelfth Night.

And amazingly, some of the customs from those faraway days remain with us.

There's not a person with a touch of the mystic in them who will have Yuletide decorations in their homes after the stroke of 12 on Jan. 6, the 12th night after Christmas.

As a good omen for the days ahead, everything must be shining and clean. No grime or dust left over from the old year.

The superstition, if you wish to call it that, even includes the burning of those cedar boughs, the holly and fir, to bring good luck into the home for the new year.

Twelfth Night or not, dust or not, superstition or not, the days will soon be lengthening and before we realize it, spring will be here.

A Suggestion— Are you looking for something to stimulate your interest during these lackadaisical first-of-the-year days? Something that might lift you out of the after-Yuletide doldrums?

Then set aside a day or a part of a day to visit the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

There you will find, in this month of January, an interesting collection of exhibits ranging from ceramics and prints to paintings and folk art.

In the Fred and Isabel Pollard Gallery of Asian Art, for instance, over 200 ceramic works are on display until Jan. 28.

These represent the art of the Chinese potter from the Han dynasty through the Quing, or from about 100 B.C. to 1900 A.D.

You have an opportunity through this display to examine low-fired, lead-glazed pottery and stoneware from various kilns.

These pieces include brown glazes, white glazes and wares from the imperial table as well as the ordinary man.

Centred on the permanent collection of the gallery, this exhibition also draws on loan collections from Mrs. Chen King Foh, Brian S. McElney and others.

The gallery's calendar tells us that an exhibition of ceramics by Robin Hooper will continue on display until Jan. 21.

Throughout this month you can see 50 woodcuts from the gallery's permanent collection demonstrating the imagery and technique of German expressionism . They were created between 1910 and 1950.

If you happen to like that sort of thing, a new exhibition of Loz Magor's work will be on view from Jan. 10.

The calendar explains it is "an extension of previous concerns (of this artist) and takes the form of abandoned human forms, i.e. coats without people and such like."

And a Reminder— You've still got time to drop in at the Emily Carr Art Centre, 207 Government, to view the exhibition of international children's art.

Collected by the centre's Bill and Roz Bowie during an effort that took the best part of the past year to complete, this exhibition features the work of young artists anywhere from pre-school age to mid-teens.

The various mediums include pencil, ink, crayon, paint, paper cut-outs and pasting, weaving or anything a child creates.

A recent addition to this exhibition is a collection from the Tibetan Children's Village in India, where the young people are refugees from Tibet.

Tt was co-ordinated by T. V. Tetong, a teacher at Pearson College of the Pacific, who is originally from Tibet.

The exhibition of international children's art is the Bowies' way of acknowledging 1979 as the United Nations Year of the Child.

It's worth taking a little time to view.

The Emily Carr Art Centre is open Mondays to Fridays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

MEETING IS JAN. 10

The panel discussion at the Cedar Hill Community Centre entitled Eat Better for Less is scheduled for Wednesday, Jan. 10, beginning at 1 p.m. This is the first of a series of five meetings on successive Wednesdays dealing with a wide range of topics.

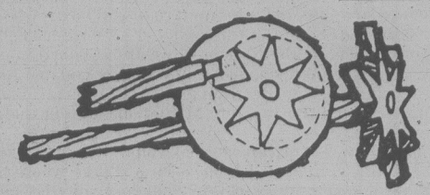
but you can fashion one of these German cooking utensils from hardwood. In case you're wondering, the querl is used for everything from mashing potatoes to squeezing lemons (with beating eggs somewhere in between) and it performs most of these duties more efficiently than any tool available at your local hardware store.



To make one, cut a circular piece (about 2 inches in diameter) from ½-inch-thick stock (preferably maple or ash). A series of straight cuts — use a vice to hold the wood — provides the traditional star shape and a ⅜-inch hole accepts the foot-long handle.

During use, the star goes into the ingredients and the handle is twirled rapidly between the palms of the hands.

OVERWATERING KILLS PLANTS

By TOM STEVENSON

Problems with foliage house plants can often be avoided by knowing the proper environment in which the plant should be grown and placing the plant in that environment, as best you can.

The most common problem is root rot, according to Purdue University specialists. The No. 1 reason for the roots of a plant to rot is overwatering. Excessive watering causes an oxygen deficiency in the soil resulting in root death and subsequent rot. Often certain soil-borne fungi and bacteria will invade root systems that are weakened by an oxygen deficiency.

The plant should be watered with room-temperature water until it comes out one of the drainage holes at the bottom. Wait about 15 minutes for excess water to drain and empty the saucer.

Do not water again until the soil feels dry to your touch. During the short days of late fall and early winter the plants do not use as much water and should not be watered as often.

If root rot is suspected, remove the plant from its pot and examine the root system. A healthy root system will appear fibrous with white root tips; if there is rotting, the roots will show blackened tips with various degrees of slimy, brown-black decay.

The top portion of the plant may be saved by air layering if root rot is severe; if that is not practical, the plant should be discarded.

Leaves may drop suddenly from a plant if there is a sudden change in the environment such as rapid temperature changes, drafts of dry, hot or cold air, or change of location from a sunny to a dark area.

Wilting of the entire plant may be due to root rot or too little water. If an inspection of the roots indicates they are healthy, the plant should be watered more often.

It should always be remembered that each plant may have its own individual need for watering. If the pot has no drainage holes, you have to guess how much water to apply.

Pale, yellow, small leaves often indicate insufficient light. Plants with brightly colored foilage lose their rich coloration and become drab-appearing. If possible, determine the light intensity required for each plant and place it in an appropriate place.

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N1.

Dear Dr. Cotter: I went out with a 17-year old boy last year when I was 16. We had a beautiful relationship. He was black and my parents didn't want me seeing him. they said they weren't prejudiced but that it would cause problems and I would be shunned by others. So we continued to see each other behind their backs.

Finally we had an argument and we decided to split up. Because I did not want to hurt him I told him some white lies, not knowing how much he would understand. We're still friends and want to go out together again but he's worried about Mom and Dad and I don't want to go against them yet. We're both young but still very close.

ANSWER: You don't want to be driven into a premature marriage just to prove that a black and a white can do it — or for any other reason. You'd better stop telling lies. And I don't suppose he likes the idea that "white" lies are somehow all right but the other kind, presumably black, are not.

As for your father and mother, if they are really unprejudiced, they will accept your friend as a person whatever his skin color. Whether you are shunned or run into problems, it is their business to back you up if the person you love is a good person for you.

I suspect the real truth is that they are worried about the problems they think they will have with their friends when they have to say that their girl is going with a black man.

They are thinking about themselves, not about you.

Dear Dr. Powell: I'm 12 years old and in Grade 8. My question is this: What does "masturbation" mean? My friends at school ask me this and my reply is, "What do you think it means?" I can't fool them any longer.

ANSWER: Masturbation is stimulation of one's own sexual organs in order to achieve sexual gratification. It is normal activity in children and adolescents and frequently continues to be part of the sexual expression of many adult men and women. There is no harmful effects on your body which occur as a result of masturbation despite the many myths that have been told about it.

Many people are made to feel guilty about masturbating but there is no reason for this guilt. It is a healthy way of exploring the body, the parts of it that are erotic or sexually sensitive, and response to this stimulation.

Dear Dr. Vichert: I am a 16-year-old guy. My relationship with my parents has been going down the drain for the last two years. I just don't seem able to communicate with them. I have left home on many occasions. I have always been able to return home, but after a month or so we have just started to fight again and things go down the drain.

I got myself in jail this time. I started turning to dope and crimes to overcome my anger and my attempts to try to escape from my parents. I feel very bad about this. I can go back home again when I get out, but I am worried that it will start again and one taste of jail is all I want to have.

ANSWER: It is a sign of maturity on your part that you have recognized the cause of your anger.

You can now make choices, and you can decide that because you do not want to go back to jail you will find some positive way to express your anger and try to solve the problems in your family. You might decide to seek some professional counselling, either for yourself or for your entire family.

But you may have to accept the possibility that there will not be much change in your family. If that's the case, live with it the best you can, express your anger directly to the people who create it, so that you do not have to act it out, and work toward making it possible to live on your own.

You should be working hard to develop yourself so that you can earn your own living and therefore be independent of those factors that are causing so much anger within yourself.

Remember, no matter how rough things get, you have control over yourself and the decisions you make. So decide that you won't go back to jail, and you won't do things that are destructive to yourself.

Never Too Old For Resolutions

Leslie Holbrook

It's easy to turn over a new leaf; I've done it hundreds of times.

That is Mark Twain's line really although he was writing about giving up smoking.

A fresh year is underway and with it comes thoughts and plans for the days ahead. At least I hope you are making definite plans about what you are going to attempt and, with a little luck, accomplish in 1979.

I get irritated with seniors who, just because they have a few pains and problems, let their days slip by haphazardly.

That is not for me — or for many other seniors who have unlocked the secret of successful senior living.

Friends may snicker a bit, grown-up children may smile indulgently when seniors speak of New Year's resolutions, but don't let that bother you.

Or if it will bother you just keep quiet about your resolves for the days ahead (less embarrassing when you break them, of course, but that not being my point).

The actual festive season may be a poor time to make serious decisions. You may be tired from fun, food and drink so perhaps a few days later would be a good time to put plans to paper.

Now that you are retired you can be in control of all your time, not just that portion outside of work hours.

Resolve in 1979 to take control and keep control. Slow down perhaps, adjust as circumstances dictate but always have a target ahead.

That's right, look ahead. It is too easy to spend your time living in your yesterdays with regrets for pleasures now past or with guilt for past transgressions. Bemoaning lost joys or lamenting former shortcomings is a 100 per cent useless activity.

Looking to the future is the alternative profitable pursuit. The past exists only in our memories; the future in our plans.

How long should you plan for? Be optimistic enough to take actions concerning programs well into the future. No one has a guarantee for any precise period ahead; any of us may be recalled by our Maker without warning.

But I don't see what that has got to do with it. No one makes a year at a time or lives it that way. Just design a 1979 program and assume you can complete it.

This is not to belittle the enjoyment of pleasant memories; they can be a great delight. But there is really only one period in which you truly can live and that is the present moment and the ones coming up.

Now you have been handed a brand new year. Make the most of it.

Happy New Year!

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for accommodating Anna From Montana who asked for a rerun of a poem titled "Slow Me Down, Lord."

I've been reading you faithfully for years and I have never seen that poem before. I think it was one of the most inspirational I've ever read. Who was the author? — WISCONSINITE

DEAR WIS: "Slow Me Down, Lord" was written by Wilfred A. Peterson, the author of several fine books, including the best-selling "The Art of Living."

Fifteen years ago a reader sent "Slow Me Down, Lord" to me and asked if I could help locate the author. I ran the poem in my column and asked the author to please come forward. Within a week I received 92 letters from readers — all claiming authorship!

DEAR ABBY: When Steve and I were engaged, he gave me a beautiful 1½-carat diamond ring. I didn't pick it out. His mother did. In fact, she also paid for it.

We broke off the engagement and I gave the ring back to Steve. A month later the engagement was on again, so Steve gave me the same diamond with the understanding that if we ever got divorced I would have to give back the diamond.

Well, we have been married for three months now, and I feel very uncomfortable wearing this ring. I feel as though it doesn't really belong to me — I'm just wearing it on a loan. What should I do? — SPARKLING BUT UNEASY

DEAR SPARKLING: Return Mama's ring to Steve. And tell him that until HE can buy you a diamond, you'll live without one.

DEAR ABBY: Since almost everyone is interested in saving money, may I make a suggestion?

Folks who go to a lot of trouble and expense sending out mimeographed "Dear Friends" Christmas newsletters should consider this: Most people can tolerate the usual bragging: "Jack is now Vice-President of his firm, I was elected Women's Club secretary, our daughter has the lead in her class play, our son was accepted in Law School, and we all went to the Orient last year." But if the senders can't add one handwritten personal line, such as, "And how is YOUR family?" they should trim their mailing list. And I hope they start with ME! — SOMEBODY

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE: Our 1976 Eldorado's gas gauge stopped working about the time we bought the car its first set of replacement tires. No connection between tires and the gauge occurrred to me until we had a flat last weekend. When I took out the spare tire, the gas gauge suddenly started working again. Now that the spare is back in the trunk, though, the gas gauge again won't budge above empty. What do we do for a permanent cure? — TIRED GAUGE

DEAR GAUGE: It's well known to Cadillac mechanics that over-tightening the spare tire can make the fuel gauge stop working. Over-tightening stretches the trunk panel enough to short out the tank sending unit. The remedy, fortunately, is simple: Just loosen the wingnut.

DEAR MIKE: Our 1977 Catalina needs new shocks. This car has Pontiac's radial-tuned suspension. I plan to buy a name-brand set of replacement shocks. Some companies offer what they call "radial shocks" for about $5 more each than the standard type. Do you recommend them? — CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED — No — a good set of standard shocks will serve just as well.

DEAR MIKE: I bought a new 1978 Ford F-100 pickup. For some reason known only to the EPA, this pickup came with a 2.75 rear axle. This ratio gives very sluggish acceleration (I have the 302 V-8), and I have to downshift for the slightest hill. My dealer says he can't help because any change would violate federal smog laws. He suggests, though, that I buy a new third member with a 3.50 ratio and have it installed by an independent mechanic. This would cost about $500. What do I do? — THIRD MEMBER

DEAR THIRD: You can save money by simply changing ring and pinion gears. It's about a 4.5-hour job, and the parts are considerably cheaper than buying an entire third member.

DEAR MIKE: The speedometer in my 1977 Aspen flutters at all speeds. What causes this, and how can it be cured? — ZIPPETY

DEAR ZIP: Check the cable connection at the speedometer head. Sometimes the retainer clip is bent. The cable might also be frayed or need a shot of graphite. Never, by the way, lubricate a speedo cable with a liquid lubricant.

Is Age 38 Too Old to Start Jogging?

your health

By L. L. Coleman, MD

I have heard of two people who have injured the muscles of their legs and their heel tendon by jogging. I wonder if it's a good idea for me and my husband to start jogging at the age of 38. — Mrs. F.C.E.

Dear Mrs. E.:

Jogging has caught the imagination of hundreds of thousands of people all over the world. Doctors and health educators agree that this excellent sport is of tremendous value in conditioning the body and increasing the blood circulation. Yet they warn that overtaxing the body without good preliminary conditioning can be hazardous, if not downright dangerous.

"How far do you jog?" is the question asked by one jogger of another. Distance and speed are not the critical values of the advantage of jogging. Consequently, being in competition with a neighbor may do more harm than good.

A slow, progressive increase in the jogging distance will add up to a mile or two after a few weeks. Only by this gradual increase in distance can the injuries to the calf muscle, the heel, the arch of the foot and the bones of the legs and feet be minimized.

There is a powerful Achilles' tendon which attaches the calf muscles to the bone of the heel. This can be injured by pounding away on surfaces that are too hard and without adequate preliminary conditioning.

Since running shoes are the only protective equipment needed for jogging, there can be absolutely no compromise with basic quality.

Certainly, the injuries of your friends should not dissuade you from a sensible program of jogging. The benefits of this fine sport are universally accepted. All jogging clubs recommend a complete physical examination, just to be certain that there are no medical problems that will contraindicate embarking on this health program.

Certain habits or conditions increase the risk of a heart attack. Some of these conditions, like your family history and advancing age, you cannot change. About some of the others, which are related to your lifestyle such as food habits, physical inactivity, smoking and so on, you can do something.

The 8-page folder Food And Your Heart explains how the food you eat affects your heart. It also says that middle-aged men who are singificantly overweight are three times more likely to have a fatal heart attack than those of normal weight.

Furthermore, you will learn on which foods you should concentrate to reduce the risk of heart disease. This advice is just a general guideline and does not replace any specific diet your doctor may prescribe for you.

In summary, you should limit consumption of fat, sugar, alcohol and salt and increase your intake of vegetables, fruits and whole grain cereal products.

The folder also tells you how to control the amount of fat and salt in your diet. For instance, avoid foods that are deep fried; use fish or poultry at least four times a week and avoid excessive amounts of high fat dairy products such as cream, cream cheese and ice cream.

This publication is packed with much more important advice. It is available from: Educational Services, Health and Welfare Canada, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 1B7.

NITRO OVERLOOKED ON GLYCERIN BOTTLE

LITTLE COMPTON, R.I. (UPI) — The brown quart bottle sitting on the shelf looked innocent enough.

When Joseph and Anne Vouchard bought their house 16 years ago, they saw the bottle marked "Glycerin" on the basement workbench and ignored it.

Then last week Bouchard casually mentioned it to fellow volunteer firemen. They suggested it might be explosive nitroglycerin. State fire marshals agreed.

They carried it outside and detonated it. The result was a deafening boom and a hole in the pavement.

Deputy Marshal William McVey said the 20 ounces of nitroglycerin was enough to the blow the Bouchard's house off its foundation.

Oil Spills May Not Be Menace

SEQUIM BAY, Wash. (AP) — Oil spills might not be the menace they appear to be, say Battelle Northwest researchers who are taking a long-term look at oil's effect on marine life.

"Catastrophes are part of nature — like a landslide burying a beach," says Dr. Chuck Gibson, manager of Battelle Northwest's Sequim Bay marine research laboratory.

"If the timeframe you're thinking in is six months, there are some problems. But think five years or 10 years or 100 years and an oil spill becomes relatively insignificant."

Dr. J. W. Anderson of Battelle says ecosystems bounce back because they have amazing resilience.

Battelle has contracts with clients including the U.S. Department of Energy, National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration and American Petroleum Institute to determine oil's effect on marine life.

"Most of our research is in the forefront of our field," said Dr. Gibson.

"But we don't answer the ultimate question: Is oil spilled on water good or bad? We try instead to define what the ultimate consequences will be to the ecosystem . . . data that can be used by the agencies which will decide what to do with the oil when it's transported and when it's spilled."

The Battelle scientists are looking for long-term answers. Their studies can last up to 15 years.

Gibson said he believes emotion and misinformation confuse discussion about marine transport of oil.

"Those who say it kills everything or nothing are both inaccurate," he said.

"We advocate people step back and look at it from a realistic point of view. The question that must be answered is whether the tradeoff of oil spills is worth getting that oil where it's needed."

In one study, Battelle is researching how quickly marine animals will take up residence in an area contaminated by oil. A second study considers the effect of oil-saturated sediment on feeding habits of clams and worms. Another evaluates how oil affects the behavior of the Dungeness crab.

Researchers are attempting to learn if a crab will flee or be attracted to oil, whether oil would be eaten by the animal or mask its ability to navigate and find food.

"The studies are all aimed at one end," said Gibson. They try to give us some understanding of what happens, the fate and effect of oil on the marine ecosystem.

"When the data is there, we're able to make a good judgment, not an emotional one."

Jet Ran Out of Fuel

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The United Airlines DC-8 crash that killed 10 people last week occurred because the jet ran out of fuel circling the airport with a landing gear problem, a federal investigator said Monday.

Sixty-nine of the 184 people aboard the plane were injured in the Thursday night crash. No one on the ground was injured.

"It looks as if there is no doubt that the aircraft ran out of fuel and the engines experienced fuel starvation so the plane couldn't complete its flight," said Doug Dreifus, chief investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board team working on the wreckage.

Dreifus said less than 65 pounds of fuel was found in the only gas tank recovered intact. A fuel flow indicator, which shows how much fuel is being fed to the engines, read "zero" at the time of impact.

Dreifus also said the pilot had not jettisoned any fuel before the crash.

The plane was without power for 44 seconds before it smashed through the vacant houses in an otherwise empty suburban strip between rows of houses and apartment buildings 3½ miles short of Portland International Airport.

"That's what happened, but why it happened and reasons behind it are the major parts of our investigation," Dreifus added.

The pilot, Capt. Malburn McBroom, 52, of Loveland, Colo., had circled the airport for nearly an hour because an indicator light showed the front landing gear had not locked in place. The airliner was making its final approach for a landing when McBroom suddenly radioed, "Mayday! Mayday! We are flaming out! We are going down! We're not going to make the airport!"

Investigators have been unable to interview McBroom, who remains hospitalized with a bruised heart and other injuries.

Pot Law Overhaul Gets Nod

The 50th annual session of the B.C. Youth Parliament prorogued at the legislature Sunday following a five-day session.

At the final session, the 85 members recommended by a one-vote margin that Canada's marijuana laws be reformed. The vote was 40-to-39.

They defeated a resolution calling for legalization of abortion and the banning of all alcohol, tobacco and lottery advertising in Canada.

The session also passed legislation setting out guidelines for a variety of social service projects to be administered throughout B.C. in 1979 at an estimated cost of $8,000.

The major project will be the organization of a camp for underprivileged children.

Held for Month, Executive Freed

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Anti-government guerrillas have released a 34-year-old Dutch executive they had held for more than a month.

The authorities said Fritz Schuitema, general manager of the Salvadoran subsidiary of Dutch-based Philips Corp., was freed unharmed just before midnight Saturday night by his captors, members of the Salvadoran Guerrilla Armed Forces of National Resistance, a group opposed to the government of President Carlos Humberto Romero.

Two British bankers and a Japanese businessman are still being held by guerrilla kidnappers.

Schuitema, kidnapped Nov. 24, was found by a taxi driver north of the capital. His wife, Ana Maria Vander Pol de Schuitema, said he would leave the country for medical treatment because he had been under "serious pressure."

In Eindhoven, the Netherlands, Philips officials said Schuitema had been held in a small cell and had been kept informed by the guerrillas of developments connected with his abduction.

The guerrillas had demanded ransom and publication of a manifesto in several countries, including Canada, as a condition for Schuitema's release. The Spanish manifesto was carried by the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Philips was reported to have paid a cash ransom, but the sum was not disclosed. The company also paid for publicaton of the manifesto, an attack on Romero, in several countries, but could not have it published in El Salvador because of a ban on "subversive materials."

Philips had the manifesto transmitted to El Salvador by radio from the Netherlands on Saturday night and placed advertisements for the broadcast in local newspapers. Schuitema was released before the broadcast was finished.

The guerrillas are still holding British bankers Ian Massie, 46, and Michael Charterton, 45, and Japanese businessman Takakasu Suzki, 42, chairman of a textile company in San Salvador. All were kidnapped in early December.

For their release, the guerrillas are demanding ransom, publication of the manifesto in El Salvador and release of five political prisoners. Romero denies his government is holding political prisoners.

Schuitema was quoted by Philips officials as saying he had no contact with the other three kidnapped men.

LIFT BRIDGE TO CONTINUE

KELOWNA (CP) — Federal Transport Minister Otto Lang says to Okanagan Lake bridge lift span will continue to operate.

Lang made the comment in a two-page letter to former premier W. A. C. Bennett of Kelowna who last summer spearheaded a petition seeking permanent closure of the lift span.

The petition was opposed by boat owners and operators.

Lift span of the bridge, which was built in 1958 while Bennett was premier, now operates from April 1 through Oct. 1. It is not raised during morning, noon and evening peak traffic periods.

Nita Tozer, spokesman for Bennett, said Friday the former premier has replied to Lang, saying he hopes the federal and provincial transportation ministries will come up with a plan to further restrict the number of hours the span is in operation.

Lang's letter said that a bridge-operating proposal soon will be submitted to the provincial highways ministry which he hopes will satisfy both highway and marine interests.

GARDENING

Rhubarb Needs Good Soil

Yours may be the one garden in a thousand where rhubarb is accorded royal treatment, in which case you are aware of the delicate and delicious flavor associated with well-grown leaf stalks.

In most gardens we relegate this plant to an out-of-the-way corner where the soil is poor and the sprinkler never reaches, causing the family to complain that rhubarb is tough, sour and unpalatable.

If not in a back corner it is probably in the same place it was planted 10 or 20 years ago, and the family's opinion is about the same.

As rhubarb is a hardy robust plant producing stalks under the toughest conditions, it is not surprising that so few gardeners give it the care and attention it needs.

Quite often a new bed planted with divisions of the old plants will produce stalks to make desserts the family will rave over. It is not the plants that are at fault, but the condition of the soil in which they are growing.

A few single or double crown pieces severed from the old roots and set with the crowns two inches deep in a rich soil will make a new bed from which small pullings may be made in the spring of 1980.

It is almost impossible to incorporate too much manure and compost when preparing a bed for rhubarb.

Commercial growers use from 80 to 120 tons of manure to the acre, compared with 20 to 40 tons for other crops.

Bonemeal and a complete and balanced fertilizer should be added and thoroughly mixed into the full depth of the soil. A bed of this type is considered good for about five years.

When a new bed is made leave sufficient plants in the old bed to maintain a supply until the new plants are well established.

Those left can be moved to a new bed a couple of years hence, and when the time comes to replenish the soil again, one of the beds will still be in good production.

Pulling is often overdone in the home garden. Gardeners tell me they pull for eating in the spring, then strip the plants of stalks in summer for wine making. This is contrary to the rules of pulling.

It has always been a rule that all pulling of rhubarb should stop when the gooseberries are ready for picking.

It must be remembered that the leaves are as important as the roots when it comes to making food. Sufficient leaves must be left on each plant over summer to permit a good supply of food to be made and stored in the crowns ready for use by the new stalks in spring.

We also know that rhubarb leaves contain large amounts of oxalic acid, the reason the leaves are never eaten. As the season progresses and food is being passed from leaves to crowns through the stalks, the oxalic acid within the stalks increases, and warnings have been issued that summer pulling should be avoided.

To obtain some sugar in the stalks in early spring, the leaves should be allowed to open fully and be exposed to sunlight for at least a week before the stalks are pulled.

Since rhubarb occupies a lot of space in the home garden and rapidly depletes the soil of nutrients, if yours is not the one garden in a thousand, it might be worthwhile making a new bed and pampering the plants a little so that they produce something the family can enjoy.

POST-HOLIDAY CHAOS

Storms Rip U.S., Europe

Times News Services

A treacherous onslaught of snow, ice and arctic winds thrust much of the United States and Europe into post-holiday chaos today.

In northern and eastern Europe, fuel supplies were cut off and roads were made impassable by huge snowdrifts.

Since Friday, at least 26 people have died in Europe and others were reported missing in what forecasters called the worst freeze-up in decades.

Blizzard conditions in the U.S. Monday caused widespread power outages in Texas and Missouri and stranded thousands of airline travellers in Chicago. At least 10 deaths were blamed on the New Year's weekend weather.

In Britain, train service was badly disrupted. Subways were halted in London but both major airports were open after a two-day shutdown. The coldest spot was in Yorkshire, near the Scottish border, where temperatures hit just about zero.

At least 10 persons were believed to have died in storm-related deaths in the worst winter weather in Britain in 15 years.

At least 17 major highways in Scotland were blocked and many villages were still isolated after two days.

In Moscow, the bitter cold snap broke Monday evening when the thermometer edged all the way up to -10 fahrenheit — almost warm compared with Sunday when the mercury registered a bone-chilling 49 below zero for Moscow's coldest recorded temperature in history.

In Poland, the government declared the northern and central provinces a disaster zone.

In East Germany, power cuts were ordered in certain areas and electricity lines felled by the weight of ice on the wires added to the trouble. The army ordered its soldiers and tracked vehicles to clear highways.

Troops were out in West Germany to help clear blocked roads after 80 hours of continuous snowfall. Even tanks got stuck in the massive drifts. Several northern cities were declared disaster areas and

Scientists Shoot Down Kiwi 'UFO'

Times News Services

Film footage of purported close encounters with UFOs over New Zealand filled television screens New Year's Day and the Royal New Zealand Air Force prepared to send up warplanes today to check it all out.

"We do not consider there is a defence threat," an air force spokesman said, "but it's all very interesting."

British astronomers scoffed at the purported 3½-minute color film that was shown on the BBC main news on New Year's Eve. In color, the round UFO had showed three bright orange rings.

Martin Ryle, professor of radio astronomy at Cambridge said the film was a hoax and he could produce a "saucer" as shown in the film in a week.

Patrick Moore, a British astronomer and TV commentator, said: "It could have been some kind of reflection of a balloon or an unscheduled aircraft. But I'm sure it came from the earth and not the skies."

Meanwhile, David Mabin, head of the New Zealand's Mount John Observatory, said the unidentified flying objects were almost certainly the planet Venus.

Mabin said Venus is currently at its brightest and can be seen for about 12 hours a day.

A rash of sightings and radar trackings of unidentified flying objects have been reported along the the coast of New Zealand in the last 10 days, culminating in the filming of the flattened spheres on New Year's Eve by an Australian television crew.

A New Zealand defence spokesman said one or two Skyhawk fighter-bombers would be "scrambled" if the Wellington airport radar picked up more positive sightings of UFOs.

The warplanes were put on standby following UFO sightings during a flight between Christchurch and Wellington.

Television newsman David Fogarty who organized the filming of the UFOs said he had seen up to 50 "saucers" in the sky during a 5½-hour flight that he made to reconstruct an earlier sighting on Dec. 21.

The film of the purported UFOs showed a series of slightly flattened spheres lighter in color at the top and bottom and around the centre.

The TV crew's sightings were followed, predictably, by a rash of sightings in Australia.

The Australian defence department said it had been notified of 19 UFO sightings since the reported filming Saturday, but was not taking them seriously.

At least 12 policemen said they saw a bright blue object tracing a random flight for three hours over Australia's east coast early today.

Black Tide Disaster?

Times News Services

LA CORUNA, Spain — The disabled Greek supertanker Andros Patria, which has spewed 50,000 tons of crude oil into the sea off the northwest Spanish coast, was being towed toward Lisbon by a Dutch tug today, the Spanish navy said.

Regarding a possible "black tide" disaster, the navy said "We have sufficient means to control and counter, if necessary, the oil slicks."

But officials insisted that a big disaster on the Spanish coasts was not likely unless wind and weather conditions changed for the worse.

"The tug Wijsmuller is towing the tanker toward Lisbon at a speed of two knots," the communique said.

The tanker was damaged by fires and explosions Sunday night.

All but three of the ship's 37 crew and passengers were lost when their lifeboat capsized in heavy waves and were believed drowned. The missing included the captain, his wife and son.

In Madrid, Greek Embassy sources said heavy seas pounded a crack in the port side hull of the 218,000-ton Andros Patria on New Year's Eve. Then came a short circuit, explosions and the fire.

"We were really scared and we never expected to ever return home again," said boatswain Evangelos Milas, one of the three crewmen who remained aboard and were rescued by helicopter.

"All of us crew members got together to wait for midnight to celebrate the New Year. We did not expect anything like what happened," Milas told Spanish television.

Before being plucked by helicopter from the crippled tanker Monday night, the chief engineer got the ship's engines running again and set the automatic pilot on a course away from Spain's northwest coast, about 30 miles away, an official Spanish navy communique said.

Today the Andros Patria was a crewless, ghost ship sailing at about 4 knots in heavy North Atlantic seas.

Rescue boats and two tugs loaded with detergents to fight the slicks were sent to the area.

Canadians Fleeing

Times News Services

TEHRAN — The Iranian military restored limited commercial air service at Tehran Airport today after a strike by airport workers Monday stranded Canadians and hundreds of other foreigners trying to flee the strife-torn country.

Meanwhile, demonstrators and soldiers fought running battles in the streets of Tehran and violence raged in Iran's provinces.

The state radio announced that all trains were halted by a nationwide strike. Inter-city bus services were stopped earlier by a gasoline shortage, caused by the continuing oil industry strike.

The shutdowns raised fears that some foreigners trying to reach Tehran might still be stranded in the provinces. But the capital's hotels, deserted lately owing to civil strife, were occupied by hundreds of foreign families awaiting departure.

Civilian Premier-designate Shahpour Bakhtiar in an emotional broadcast vowed:

"I shall not let this country be destroyed even if I have to die." He promised to free all political prisoners, allow political opposition and end martial law "gradually."

But demonstrators who earlier shouted "Death to the shah" took up a new slogan, "Death to Shahpour Bakhtiar, henchman of American imperialists."

Military Premier Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari resigned officially Monday. He was told by Shah Mohamed Reza Pahlavi to stay on until Bakhtiar forms a cabinet.

Milder Weather Brings Prospect Of Snow

Milder temperatures hovering just above freezing make snow a distinct prospect for Greater Victoria by late today or Wednesday.

Small frozen ponds probably will remain safe for skaters, but police are continuing to warn people off larger lakes or inlets on southern Vancouver Island.

Since the cold snap started, a teen-age girl has drowned and four other other persons have been rescued after falls through ice.

A Victoria weather office spokesman said today snow is a possibility tonight at higher elevations and at lower levels Wednesday as a weather system brings clouds inland from the Pacific.

The overnight low is expected to be between -4 and -2 degrees, rising to just above freezing by day.

The New Year's day low of -11 matched the New Year's eve low at the airport, while Gonzales weather station reported a low of -12.2. The thermometer failed to rise above -2 Monday.

The only known Vancouver Island victim of the abonormally low temperatures of recent days is Karen Barbara Yates, 15, of Duncan.

The girl died Friday when she fell through the ice at a skating party near Duncan.

Divers recovered her body late Saturday.

A Nanaimo man who brought his ladder to a dock at Brannen Lake in case any skaters broke through the ice is credited with the daring rescue of two persons Monday when thin ice dunked three skaters into frigid water.

Murray Martin used a neighbor's canoe to get close to the trio when the thin ice began breaking as he carried the three-metre ladder toward them.

"I was just scared the whole time that they would let go of the ice and sink," Martin said.

Martin had checked the lake Sunday and found it too thin for skating. He said he was on the dock of his neighbor's lakeside home when he saw the three break through the ice.

"I raced back and got the

Second Jubilee Burn Death

An elderly patient died of burns in the intensive care unit of Royal Jubilee Hospital Sunday.

The man, Edward Jones, aged 88, was transferred to the unit Saturday after accidentally setting his clothing alight about 8:20 p.m. in the hospital's Ward 4 West.

It is believed he had been trying to light a cigarette.

A hospital spokesman said today the ward is an area where the hospital permits certain patients to smoke under supervision.

However, the patient was not under supervision at the time, he said.

An inquest will be held 7.30p.m. Monday, at the Small Claims Court in the Provincial Court building.

The fire was the second involving a death at Jubilee in December.

James Pattullo, 63, burned while smoking in the hospital's Memorial Pavilion Dec. 21, died five days later.

U.S. Plans 'Haven' for Refugees

Times News Services

MANILA — A U.S. congressional team flew over a stranded refugee ship in Manila Bay today and announced a rehabilitation plan that would turn Asia into a "haven" for Vietnamese refugees.

Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., told reporters the Asian Development Bank had agreed to finance the projects for the establishment of permanent "self-sustaining" refugee communities "in various nations throughout Asia."

The idea behind the plan, he said, was to remove the economic obstacles to the resettlement of refugees "so that some of the nations which have not accepted the refugees will be moved into accepting them."

Wolff and his party had a first-hand look at the refugee situation when they flew over Manila where 2,100 Vietnamese refugees lay packed in the Hong Kong freighter Tung An, unable to land after Philippine authorities denied them temporary asylum last week.

Werner Blatter, representative of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees who has been screening the refugees, indicated at the least a third or about 800 of them would be resettled in industrialized countries. These are refugees with family links overseas.

Philippine authorities indicated they would insist that those refugees who might not be repatriated should go to Hong Kong, their first port of call.

"Let them go to Hong Kong," one senior official said. "We should have done what Brunei did." The Tung An was earlier denied entry in Brunei and towed back to open waters.

The right to demand that a vessel sail to its first port of call is provided under international law, the spokesman said.

The Tung An left Bangkok Dec. 2 with a cargo of cattle feed bound for Hong Kong. It rescued a sinking boatload of 700 Vietnamese, 230 of whom drowned off the coast of southern Vietnam.

A Philippine newspaper suggested the United States accommodate the refugees at its naval base 90 miles northwest of Manila while resettlement arrangements were made.

HAVING A BRANDY and coffee overlooking frozen Lake Balatol in the gloom of a Hungarian winter had a happy spinoff for a Victoria researcher last year.

Although not the stuff great scientific discoveries are made of, the incident demonstrates for Dr. Michael Ashwood-Smith the human aspects of highly technical pursuits that cross international boundaries.

Ashwood-Smith is a University of Victoria biologist granted funds by the National Research Council to investigate genetic phenomena, in which he collaborates with colleagues at the University of Alberta, York University and the Institute of Radiobiology in Budapest.

During a visit to Hungary last winter, finishing lunch at a resort on Central Europe's largest lake where he had been taken by associate Shando Igali, the talk turned to the use of chemicals and ultraviolet radiation to treat psoriasis — one of the applications of their research.

The two decided it might be in the best interests of patients who are given this kind of medical treatment to stay away from sunlight for a while afterward, and in a brief letter to the British Medical Journal outlined their reasons.

BMJ subsequently printed the letter and physicians in all parts of the world were able to read it and take notice.

"It was only a five-minute conversation, but this idea came out of it," Ashwood-Smith said. It was an example of the way scientists collaborate through the Iron Curtain, or anywhere else in the world where scientific interests are shared.

In the past year and a half, work on ultraviolet radiation and chromosome damage has been conducted by Ashwood-Smith in conjunction with others in the department of biology and the chemistry department at UVic, in chemistry and genetics departments at the University of Alberta, in biology at York University, and at the Budapest institute.

Some has been organized and formally funded and the rest has been an informal arrangement between colleagues, Ashwood-Smith said. For three years the research council provided about $13,500 a year for the work. This year, and for the next two years, NRC is providing $25,000 a year.

Most is spent on salaries for the painstaking hours of peering into miscroscopes, analysing and charting the data obtained. Specimen slides in the tens of thousands have been accumulated in the past few years, and the salaries of good technicians keep rising, the biologist noted.

For a number of years before coming to Canada, Ashwood-Smith worked on radiation effects at the U.K. Atomic Energy Agency, and decided to continue this area of research in a modified way by studying ultraviolet effects.

Working with his Hungarian accomplice, using bacteria, viruses and cultured animal cells, they studied the effects of UV light on the cells in combination with natural chemicals known as psoralens. These concentrate in such plants as celery, figs and parsley and their effects go back into folklore.

Essentially, they are without biological activity, but in combination with UV they can be dangerous, particularly if certain fungi happen to be present, Ashwood-Smith said.

They begin reacting with skin cells and have an effect on nucleic acid, the DNA which is a chief ingredient of mammalian chromosomes that determine sex and individual characteristics.

At the very least this combination of UV and psoralens appears to damage chromosomes, which may have far-reaching genetic implications, but lethal agents also are produced resulting in cell damage.

The ancients noticed the pigmenting effect of sunlight on the skin of celery harvesters, or persons smeared with the juice of certain other plants, which happened to contain psoralens, and dark-skinned people used this as a cosmetic treatment for white blotches.

Contemporary treatment of psoriasis, for which there is no known cure, involves the administration of chemical psoralens with controlled UV light, the effect of which is to preferentially kill off those skin cells that are causing the affliction by dividing too fast.

But citing a third area of application, Ashwood-Smith said it was "disgraceful" that in France and other countries — but not Canada — there is widespread use of popular but potent patent preparations like the suntanning lotion Bergasol, which contains psoralens.

True, it will protect the skin from further solar radiation, but meanwhile it has damaged the DNA in skin cells. Heavily and attractively advertised in posters and magazines across Europe, Bergasol is sold at every bathing spa and ski resort in such quantity that Ashwood-Smith thinks it could also be an ecological hazard to micror-ganisms in lakes and streams where it washes off the bronzing bodies of sunseekers.

"Every chemical that changes DNA has a problem," Ashwood-Smith said. He could see no need for the dangerous use of psoralens in cosmetics.

BUT IN RESEARCH, using cultured cells — animals or humans are not used in this work — scientists may discover more about fundamental problems, enabling them to understand more about genetic change and cell damage.

While collaborating with UVic physicist Dr. Gerhart Friedmann, using x-ray radiation on psoralens, Ashwood-Smith compared the effects with UV light. They found an equal amount of chromosome damage produced the same amount of cell kill, indicating exposure to either is equally risky.

The biologist stressed again the value of associations with others in the community of shared knowledge. This time it was through UVic chemist Reg Mitchell, who made one of the key psoralen compounds, angelicin, used in the experiments because of its specific effect on DNA.

When word of this got around, Ashwood-Smith began getting letters until he has now had about 20 requests from around the world for small quantities of the chemical.

He sends them off without charge, adding to his contacts and knowledge of the subject.

"When a colleague asks you for something, you try to accommodate him. So you have a collaboration with these places, like Harvard, University of Dundee and London."

In that respect, Ashwood-Smith and Mitchell can take some credit for supplying biological research with a useful genetic probe.

The results can be as helpful as meeting a colleague in his own laboratory, without the expense of global jet travel.

Broadmead Appeal Probable

A spokesman for the developers Broadmead Farms Ltd. said today the company will probably appeal the B.C. Supreme Court judgment last month which quashed the bylaw for the proposed Minnie Mountain development at Ten Mile Point.

Broadmead general manager Gordon Rolston said a final decision won't be made until after the firm's solicitors have studied Mr. Justice William Trainor's written decision.

But he added: "I think we have made a decision, even if it hasn't been finalized. The feeling of the company is that we will appeal."

Broadmead Farms Ltd. believes it has a strong enough case to warrant taking the matter to appeal, he said.

In quashing the bylaw Trainor found there was a reasonable apprehension of bias by the ordinary citizen because Ald. David Paterson voted for the bylaw, which received 5-4 approval by Saanich council last October.

Paterson, a chartered accountant, is the office manager for the solicitors Pearlman and Lindholm, which provides legal services to Saanich municipality.

Paterson said today he, too, has not had an opportunity to discuss his own situation with his lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood, following the court ruling.

But for the time being at least he considers there is no real change in his aldermanic role.

"My view is that I have all the powers, responsibilities and voting rights of any other alderman," he said.

"I will continue to exercise my right to vote and carry on my functions as an alderman for the next little while."

Paterson said if Broadmead's appeal is successful it will vindicate his own position, but if not he will have a major decision to make.

"In that case I will probably feel, why should my employer suffer in even the smallest way just because of my position on council," he added.

Professionals Eyed On Sex Harassment

Victoria Rape Relief has begun a research project to determine the extent of sexual harassment of women by professionals.

The organization has taken out newspaper ads asking women who have been harassed within the past five years to get in touch with the rape relief centre.

Staff member Rowena Hunnisett said today the research project was begun partly as a result of a recent case in Vancouver where an optician pleaded guilty to sexually harassing several of his clients.

It also stems from an increasing amount of documented evidence that women are subjected to various forms of sexual harassment from professional men as well as professional women being harassed by their clients.

As a result of the increasing publicity on the subject women are beginning to speak up more, Hunnisett said.

"For so long women have been afraid to confront the professionals they go to who are harassing them," she said.

Hunnisett defined sexual harassment as a minor form of sexual assault which could mean anything from pressure to engage in sexual intercourse to touching and fondling or even psychological pressure of a sexual nature.

At times it takes the form of a professional telling a patient that it is in her interests to go to bed with him, Hunnisett said.

Although Rape Relief is focusing on this kind of sexual harassment, Hunnisett said women being harassed on the job is another area of growing concern.

She said although Rape Relief is convinced these things are happening in the Victoria area, the organization has no idea of the extent of the problem.

It is hoped that the research project will shed more light on the situation and provide the group with some facts to back up their case.

Hunnisett said it will likely take two or three months to complete the project. She added that Rape Relief is not certain what action, if any, will be taken if a number of women do come forward with sexual harassment stories.

That will depend on the nature of the case and also the woman involved.

They Broke the Ice, Then Went for Swim

They had to break a hole in the ice but polar bear swimmers New Year's Day did their customary thing to the delight of an estimated 700 spectators at Beaver Lake.

Organizer Ken Cangylswyk, of the Netherlands Association of Vancouver Island, said he used a sledge hammer to smash a 16-foot swimming hole in the four to five-inch thick ice.

"It took me about 45 minutes to break the hole," he said, three times as long as his stay in the 2 degrees water.

Eighteen swimmers, including five women and a German shepherd, mostly made an in-and-out-dip compared with Canglyswyk's feat.

"I stayed about 15 minutes. I was the organizer and I couldn't let them down."

At Willows Beach, 19 men from HMCS Kootenay and one from their destroyer squadron headquarters staff went for a dip.

Two Men Injured In Boat Collision

Two men have been released from hospital following a weekend boat collision near Oak Bay Marina.

Stuart Fraser, 49, of 2261 Estevan, and David Holland, 49, of 2380 Musgrave, received leg injuries when their inflatable 20-horsepower Zodiac rescue craft was in collision with an 18-foot fibreglass boat driven by Henry Scott, 542 Fraser.

The Zodiac collapsed from the force of the collision, tossing Fraser into the water.

Scott, whose boat had a 135-horsepower motor, said today he was heading for the marina and was in midchannel to avoid another vessel that was coming in quickly from behind and to his right.

"I had started to slow down when the Zodiac came around the corner and we had no more than three seconds to try to avoid a collision."

Fraser and Holland were on their way to the Cattle Point boat ramp at 2:30 p.m. Saturday when the mishap occurred. They were returning the Zodiac to the Oak Bay police station after using it the night before in a late-night rescue operation involving duck hunters on Mary Tod Island.

Holland described the collision: "The last I saw (Fraser), my partner, he was about five feet in the air. I saw the bottom of the other boat hull going over my head. That terrified me.

"I thought I would hit the propellers. 'Oh, my God,' I thought. 'I'm going right through his propellers.' "

But the vessels bounced away from each other at that point.

If It Isn't a Stake, It's a Weaver!

ON MY DESK SITS A LOP-sided little basket with a sheaf of pencils jutting from it. In spite of its tippiness, its hit-or-miss weaving and its uneven lip, I'm ridiculously proud of that basket. Made it all by myself, I did, as the first assignment in an Indian basketry course given by anthropologist Joy Inglis. And with it, I have finally laid the ghost of grim Miss Dove.

Miss Dove had dominion over a Grade 1 class in the prairie school where education first got its hooks in me. She also had a ruler — it looked big as a club to a blundering, terrified small boy — with which she pounded the knuckles of the stupid or forgetful.

I was both. At basket-making, a manual ordeal which occupied our Friday afternoons, I was especially dense. The ruler descended frequently.

When Win, these many years later, suggested that I sign up for the basketry course with her, a long-buried uneasiness stirred in my subconscious.

"Uh-uh," I said. "That kind of jazz isn't for men."

My dear one dealt neatly with that argument.

"A couple of other men are taking it," she said. "And if you don't, you'll have a long, dull Monday evening alone while I'm having fun on Quadra Island."

So, against my better judgment, I signed up for the course, which was to be held in Cape Mudge village community hall.

On Monday evening, we took the ferry from Campbell River to Quathiaski Cove on the other side of Discovery Passage, then drove out by a woods road in the wintry dark to the Kwakiutl village. We found the community hall, a fine, large bulding, set back from the main street. A spectacular Susiutle, a two-headed monster from Indian myth, was painted across its front. Light escaped from its windows.

The prospective basket-makers had foregathered in one corner. Against the wall, our instructor appeared to be grappling with a thick brown snake. The snake resolved itself into a bundle of very long, limber splints, tied together at one end, and secure to a wall-hook.

Mrs. Inglis turned briskly to us with a batch of splints in hand. These, she explained, would be our weavers. Now she issued us with little bundles of stakes — short, heavier splints, which would provide framework and backbone for our baskets.

We would take five stakes thus, and lay another five across them so, then attach two of the weavers.

Her clever hands demonstrated. The procedure, as she executed it, looked easy as falling off a log.

I stole a glance at Win. Her fingers were busy. She, at least, didn't appear to be having any trouble.

My own fingers groped and fumbled. In a state bordering on panic I regrouped my stakes, took a firm grip on the slithery weavers, and started again.

With the base of her basket well-established, Win looked my way.

"Oh, boy!" she said unfeelingly. "What a mess!"

I became aware that a presence was bending over me. My fingers turned to sausages. Any moment now, the cruel ruler would come down on my knuckles.

But past is past, and in this present it was only Joy Inglis, who with all the kindness in the world, pointed out my error and started me right.

After that, Miss Dove's shade haunted me no longer. My basket acquired a bottom, and tier by tier, its sides began to climb.

We learned the necessity of keeping our materials pliable by soaking them in a bucket of water at intervals. Presently when our first weavers were used up, we were taught how to work others into our expanding baskets.

Pleased though I am with my handiwork, far be it from me to describe it as a thing of beauty. There are flaws. It has insisted on moulding itself into the shape of an old-fashioned spitoon.

But I have already laid the groundwork for my next basket, which will be bigger and better.
